Encephalitis epidemic in county

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The outbreak of encephalitis has reached epidemic proportions in Cook County, the Illinois Dept. of Public Health announced Thursday.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, department director, said 25 of the state's 37 probable and suspected sleeping sickness virus cases are in Cook County. Five more confirmed cases are Downstate.

"According to the latest results from our state public health laboratory, Cook County is now experiencing an outbreak of St. Louis encephalitis of epidemic proportions," she said. "This is the first known outbreak of this disease in the Chicago area."

DR. LASHOF warned residents of the county to take precautions against bites by mosquitos, which transmit the disease to humans from several species of birds.

Spread of the disease has been centered in the South suburbs. Dr. Lashof said no evidence of encephalitis has been found in the mosquitos collected in the Northwest suburban area by the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District.

"The next 10 days, which is the length of time a physician must wait to take a second blood sample from a suspect patient, will be critical," she said.

Dr. Lashof, at a Chicago news conference, listed several measures to reduce the chance of suffering mosquito bites, which she said occur most commonly at night. They are:

- Use of mosquito repellant.
- Securing window and door screens.
- Removing backyard containers that serve as mosquito breeding grounds.
- Cutting high weeds.
- Spreading fuel oil on puddles of stagnant water to kill mosquito larvae.
- "Any other actions that may help to avoid or destroy mosquitos."

SYMPTOMS OF encephalitis include nausea, high fever, achiness and muscle problems. There is no known cure for the disease but Dr. Lashof said most victims recover naturally.

In a press statement, the health department said the five confirmed cases of encephalitis have occurred in Clay, Jasper, Macon, Jefferson and Union counties.

There are 20 probable cases, meaning initial laboratory results indicate a person has the disease. Sixteen of those occurred in Cook County and the other four are in Will, Cumberland, Wayne and Randolph counties.

There are also 12 suspect cases, nine in Cook County and the others in Jefferson, Richland and Wayne counties.

THE DEPARTMENT said two persons have died of suspected St. Louis encephalitis this year, an 18-year-old man in Oak Park and a 55-year-old man in Wayne County. Earlier the department thought an 83-year-old man in Silvis had died of the disease, but a spokesman Thursday said later tests showed he probably died of something else.

"I don't think everybody bitten by a mosquito should panic," Dr. Lashof said at the news conference.

She said the disease usually strikes persons over 50 years old but that one of the five confirmed cases is a 23-year-old hospitalized in Champaign. Thirteen of the state's 37 probable and suspected cases were persons under 50, including an 8-year-old South suburban boy.

The only Cook County cases reported outside the South suburbs were in LaGrange and Berwyn.

DR. LASHOF said that reports of the disease could "drop off" quickly because the number of mosquitos in the Chicago area peaked Aug. 8.

Dr. Colette Rasmussen of the County Health Dept. said, "There are extremely few cases of the disease being reported, and even fewer being confirmed so we don't want people to get alarmed over this.

"If they take the precautions they are being told about and if the mosquito abatement districts and municipalities spray for mosquitos, then we shouldn't have any problem with the disease in Cook County."

Suburbs, district spray to kill mosquito larvae

A Herald staff report

Several suburbs and the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District began spraying for mosquitos Thursday as a preventive measure against the spread of encephalitis (sleeping sickness) carried by the insects.

Mosquito abatement district crews have been "working around the clock" to spray Malathion throughout the Northwest suburbs to kill mosquito larvae, said Wilbur Mitchell, abatement district director.

Officials in Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows, which contracted with a private firm to supplement their mosquito program earlier this summer, have arranged for special spraying. The firm, Clark Outdoor Spraying Co., is being asked to spray in the three towns.

BRUNO MANNELLA, Rolling Meadows sanitarian, said no increase in mosquitos has been noted, but because of the reports of encephalitis in Cook County, the extra spraying is "just good insurance."

But most local health department officials said they would not privately contract for special spraying unless the situation worsens.

Mitchell said the spraying of Malathion is the only "preventive measure" that can be taken against mosquitos.

"There haven't been as many mosquitos this summer as there have been in the past, so I don't think we are going to have any problem here," Mitchell said.

HOWEVER, AREA health officials are watching closely the daily mosquito counts for any increase, he said.

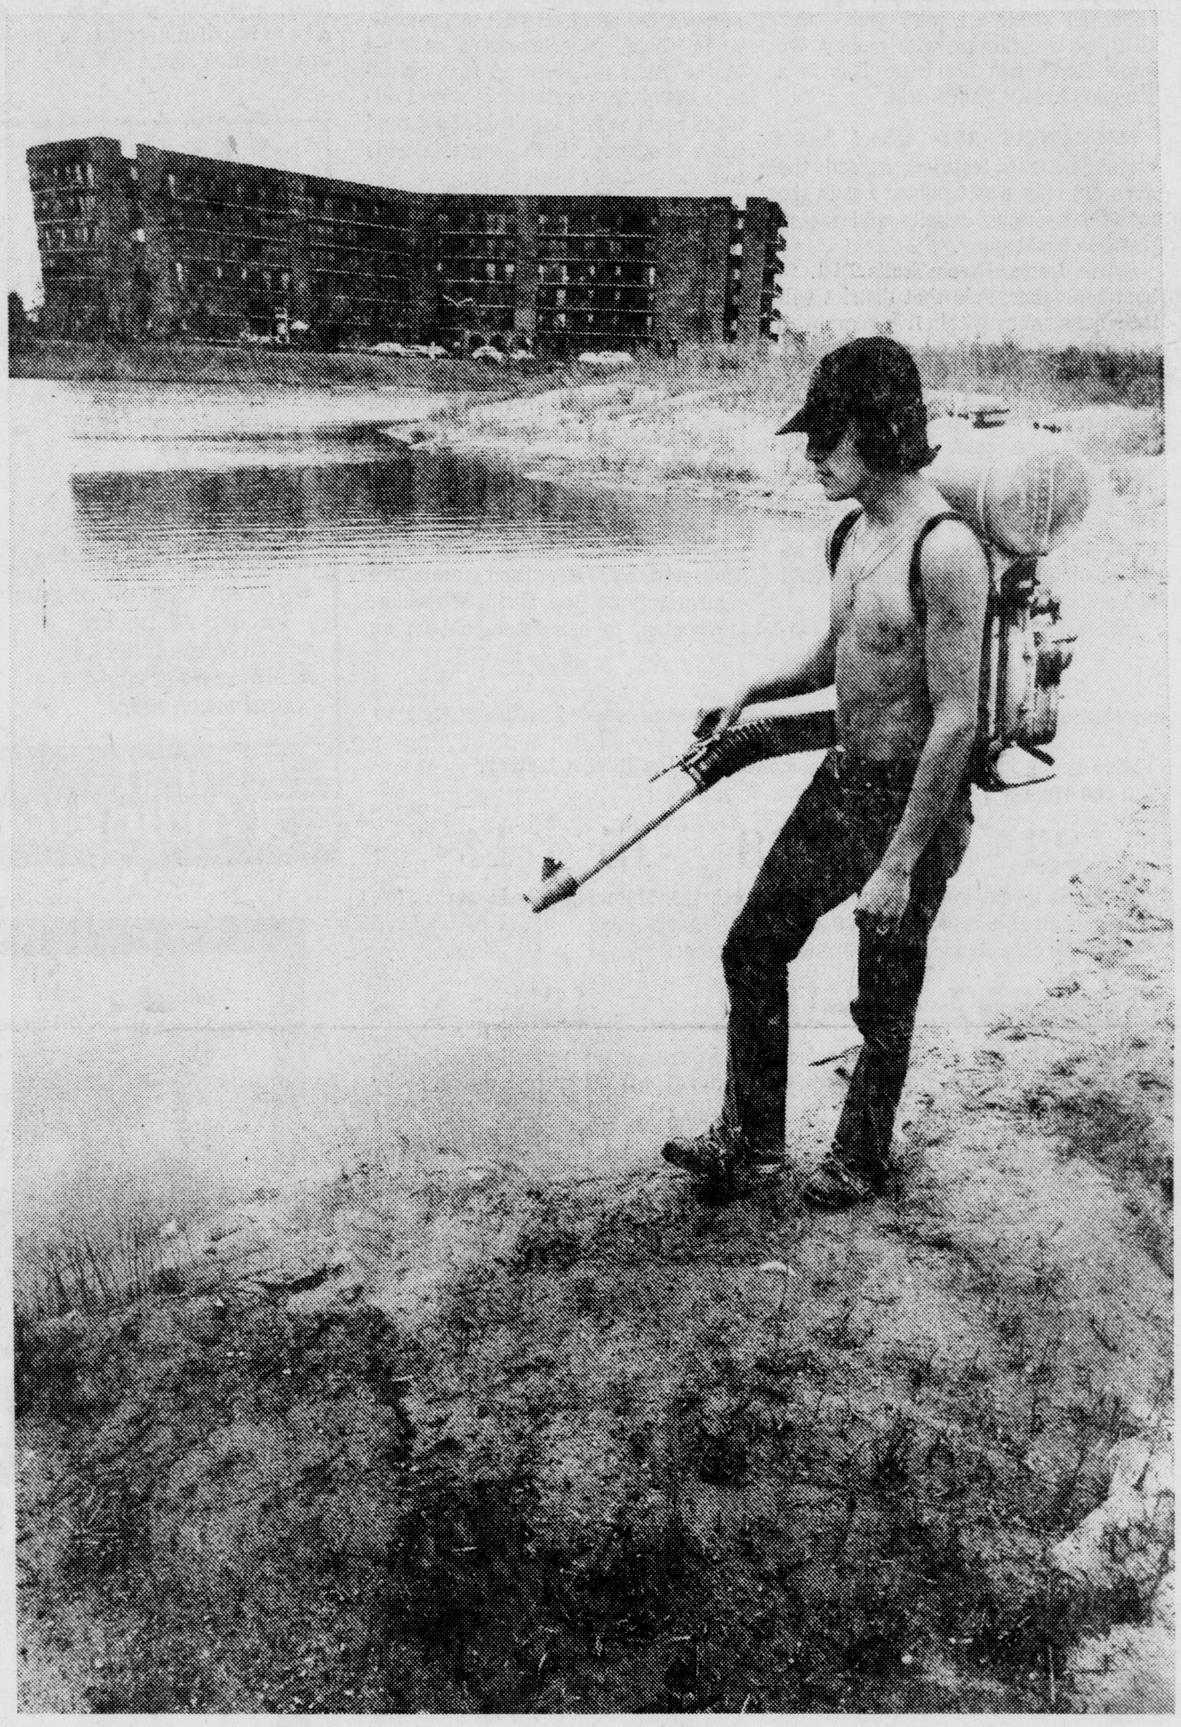

The Northwest Mosquito Abatement District also is spraying the county forest preserves, which border villages like Elk Grove and Hoffman Estates, where greater concentration of the insects are found, he said.

Arthur Janura, general superintendent of the County Forest Preserve District, said forest preserve crews are spraying additional Malathion with blowers.

"I HAVEN'T seen a mosquito scare like this in the 20 years I have worked for the district. People are calling to ask about having their houses sprayed and wondering what they should do," Mitchell said.

County and area health department officials are advising residents to dump all standing water out of birdbaths, pots, garbage cans, swimming pools, rain gutters and ditches, because mosquitos normally breed in water-laden areas.

They also suggest garbage cans be covered and residents use mosquito repellent spray outdoors.

RICH WELLS of Mount Prospect sprays diluted mineral oil on a pond in Palatine Thursday during stepped up efforts by the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District to wipe out larvae which could be carriers of encephalitis (sleeping sickness). No cases of encephalitis have been reported in Northwest Cook County yet.

Electric bills to increase 75c-$1.15

by LEA TONKIN

Commonwealth Edison Co. won a 6.87 per cent service rate increase from the Illinois Commerce Commission, the second major increase this year.

The decision will mean an average 75 cents to $1.15 increase in residential customers' monthly service bills, starting in a month. The rate hike tops a 5.8 per cent increase granted the utility Feb. 14.

A 17.7 to 21.5 per cent jump in May-through-September service rates for customers who have electric space heating is included in the rate increase package.

Commonwealth Edison will gain an added $116 million in annual revenues from the service rate increase granted Thursday. The February boost in service rates should generate a $90 million increase in annual revenues. The utility asked the ICC in October 1974 for a 15.6 per cent rate increase, with an interim 7.3 per cent increase.

500 deaths predicted nationwide

Labor Day weekend traffic not for faint-hearted

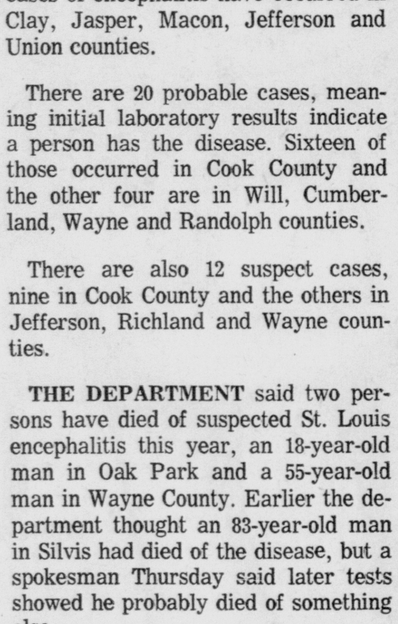

by JOHN MAES

It begins today in force — departure with friends and family to enjoy the last big warm-weather fling of the year — the Labor Day weekend.

An estimated 425,000 motorists will crowd Midwestern highways to take advantage of the three-day holiday in light of a reduced gasoline shortage trauma that decreased the number of travelers on the nation's roads last year.

Travelers can expect hot and humid weather, with chances of showers and thunderstorms during most of the weekend, says the National Weather Bureau.

THIS YEAR, there should be more traffic volume and longer trips, said Ron Kuykendall, a spokesman for the National Safety Council. "This year, we have a summer that's not on the tail of the real energy trauma, when people were less anxious to take extended trips over the holiday." But now "there's a lot of anxiety to take to the road," he said.

The safety council predicts this year's period will produce between 460 and 560 traffic deaths, with anywhere from 18,000 to 23,000 disabling injuries.

Last year, fatalities for the Labor Day weekend numbered 516 with 20,700 disabling injuries. Nineteen holiday traffic deaths were reported in Illinois last year.

Chicago Motor Club projections show that as many as 200,000 cars will be traveling through the Chicago area Saturday and Sunday. State police predict heaviest traffic during rush-hour today and all day Monday.

TO FACILITATE local traffic flow, state police say current road construction will be halted for the weekend on the Tri-State Tollway between Willow Road and Dempster Street and in southern Cook County.

Lt. Hugh McGinley of District 3 state police in Des Plaines said patrols will be increased by 8 per cent to enforce traffic laws and deal with "extra traffic problems" during the holiday.

McGinley also advised motorists to avoid Ill. Rte. 12 (Rand Road) because of expected tie-ups there. "It's always jammed. If they stay off, they'll do themselves a favor," he said.

Elsewhere, traffic movement on the Stevenson Expressway is expected to be extremely slow because of continuing roadwork, and motorists should avoid it, Richard Evans, a spokesman for the motor club said.

ALTHOUGH ROADWORK in Illinois and neighboring states should not cause any serious problems, Evans said drivers should watch for possible slow-moving traffic on the following highways:

- ILLINOIS — Ill. Routes 53 and 83 near Long Grove, I-80 near Minooka, I-70 near the Vandalia bridge and I-57 from U.S. Rte. 45 to I-74.
- INDIANA — I-65 northwest of Indianapolis and south of Ind. Rte. 28, I-65 north of Louisville, I-94 west and east of Michigan City, I-69 north and south of Fort Wayne and U.S. Rte. 41 north of I-80. U.S. Rte. 41 is closed from the junction of I-80 to the junction of Ind. Rte. 312.
- WISCONSIN — The biggest problem has been I-90-94 between Portage and the Wisconsin Dells, a stretch of some 20 miles.Evans said major stalls have been reported there in the last few weeks. Other work areas in the state are on I-94 and U.S. Rte. 141 near Milwaukee and Wis. Rte. 57, northeast of Greenbay. Wis. Rte. 67 is closed between Elk Horn and Wis. Rte. 50 near Lake Geneva.
- MICHIGAN — I-94 west of Jackson and west of Ann Arbor to Detroit and I-75 south of Lansing.

What about lodging? Although Evans said chances are dim for finding a room without a reservation in the Midwest, he said the best time to look for a place to stay would be before 6 p.m. when motorists begin pulling off the road for the night.

Public hearing on money woes

'Bail us out,' area school chiefs urge legislators

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Suburban school officials poured out their financial problems Thursday night to members of the Illinois House Education Committee and called on legislators to bail them out.

The committee held a public hearing at Old Orchard Junior High School, Skokie, on the financial problems facing suburban school districts caught up in declining enrollment.

Committee member State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, said it is the first time a house committee has met in the north suburbs. "When we are in Springfield, we always hear that the suburban areas are very rich — that they are overflowing with money. We know that's just not true. This is a troubled area," Jaffee said.

EDUCATORS AND school board members who testified agreed the area not only was troubled but in the midst of serious deficits and facing possible bankruptcy.

Sylvia Lurie, River Trails Dist. 26 board member, said that district will face bankruptcy within five years with out substantial increases in revenue.

"The bulk of our state aid money is eaten up by inflation and teachers' salaries," she said. If the district holds salary increases to 7 per cent and holds the line in all other areas, it will go bankrupt by 1978, she said. Even with major cuts in staff and increases in class size, the district could be bankrupt by 1980, she said.

"Whether after five years of cutbacks and rough salary negotiations we can retain quality education is doubtful," Mrs. Lurie said.

A number of people in the district have asked why a referendum cannot be held to raise taxes, she said. "The current state aid formula prohibits any increase in taxes. If we raise taxes, state aid goes down. It's a Catch 22 situation," she said.

MRS. LURIE asked legislators to either raise state aid substantially or change the aid formula to allow districts to raise taxes without being penalized.

Harold Brieschke, business manager of Des Plaines Dist. 62, and G. Allen Gogo, superintendent of East Maine Dist. 63, testified the legislature mandates curriculums school districts must teach, but it does not fund those programs. Both said this adds to their financial difficulties.

Donald Eslick, an assistant superintendent of the Illinois Office of Education, testified there has been a steady erosion of the property tax base school districts need for the majority of their money. Much of the erosion has been a deliberate attempt on the part of the legislature to provide tax relief for taxpayers, he said. The erosion has forced districts to rely almost exclusively on increased state aid for needed revenue, Eslick said.

ESLICK SAID IOE supports a bill sponsored by Jaffee and committee chairman State Rep. Glenn Schneider, D-Wheaton, to base state aid on an average daily student attendance over the last three years rather than only on the last year. The bill would allow districts to adjust to state aid cuts at a slow pace, Jaffee said. The bill would cost about $29 million and would provide more than $7 million in increased aid to suburban Cook County school districts.

Jaffee said he will sponsor a series of bills to aid the financially troubled districts.

Eslick said IOE also supports the consolidation of school districts to help ease financial problems. He said funds and staff members are available to boards interested in starting a consolidation study.

Sadat reports no peace pact 'hesitation'

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger returned to Israel early Friday for more negotiations with the Israeli government on an interim settlement that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said he is ready to initial.

But a senior U.S. official said Israel probably will not sign the pact unless Congress approves a provision for American volunteers to act as peace watchdogs in the Sinai desert.

Kissinger's plane arrived from Alexandria, Egypt, where he spent the evening in talks with Sadat and other Egyptian leaders. In Jerusalem, more than 20,000 rightwing demonstrators staged their biggest-yet anti-Kissinger, anti-pact protest in a peaceful march through the city.

Kissinger was to resume his Israeli negotiatons at mid-morning Friday.

Defense Minister Shimon Peres said in Tel Aviv that Americans on the frontline of the Middle East conflict for the first time will act as a guarantee that the proposed Israeli-Egyptian interim peace agreement will be kept.

A spokesman for Kissinger said as the secretary flew from Egypt that the negotiations are not wrapped up. He quoted Kissinger as saying "good progress has been made," but he stressed that the mediation has not yet been successfully concluded. However, diplomats said they expected the initialing to take place Sunday or Monday.

Asked by reporters if there were any remaining negotiating details that could halt initialing of the agreement negotiated by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Sadat said, "On my side? No, I don't see anything."

Did he have any hesitations, reporters asked.

"On our part? There are no hesitations."

The senior U.S. official told reporters aboard the plane that shuttled Kissinger from Jerusalem to Alexandria that a massive diplomatic crisis would ensue if Congress vetoed the volunteer plan. The plan is a vital ingredient in the settlement formula to the Israelis, the official said.

Kissinger said in a speech in Vail, Colo., last week that the volunters would carry sidearms, such as pistols or revolvers.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., has announced that he opposes the pact.

Sadat said there was a "great possibility" Eypgt would initial the settlement Sunday or Monday. Initiaing freezes the language of the document, which does not, however, take effect until signed.

According to diplomats, both Egypt and Israel were now regarded as sure to initial. But, according to the senior U.S. official, Israel's signature would depend on Congressional action on the volunteer plan.

Kissinger himself told reporters negotiations were "getting down to the wire."

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres, meanwhile, said stationing Americans on the front line of the Middle East conflict will ensure maintenance of the new peace agreement in the Sinai desert.

The plan calls for between 100 to 150 Americans to set, operate and support the establishment of at least two manned and two unmanned early warning stations in the U.N. buffer zone between Israeli and Egyptian forces in Sinai.

Peres said U.N. forces in the region have proved themselves powerless and the presence of U.S. volunteers "further assures the maintenance of the settlement for an agreed period . . ."

MORE THAN 3,000 LEFTWING demonstrators gathered at city hall plaza in Tel Aviv Thursday and later marched through the main streets of the city to dramatize their feelings in favor of a new Israeli-Egyptian interim peace agreement. They countered a demonstration by 20,000 rightwing opponents to the pact who staged a massive march in Jerusalem against Kissinger.

. . . Rightists denounce Kissinger

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres said Thursday U.S. volunteers in Sinai will ensure that both sides stick to a new Israeli-Egyptian interim peace agreement, but more than 20,000 rightists in Jerusalem denounced the proposed pact.

The rightists took part in the biggest protest yet, denouncing Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and the peace agreement he is mediating, which they consider a sell-out to Egypt.

The demonstrators, most of them religious youths of the Gush Emunim — Believers Bloc — movement, gathered at the Wailing Wall in Jerusalem, one of the most sacred sites in Judaism.

Little more than 40 miles over the Judean Hills to the northwest in Tel Aviv, nearly 4,000 left-wing demonstrators staged a counter-protest, gathering at city hall plaza and marching down Ibn Gvirol Street to dramatize their support of Kissinger and the new Sinai pact.

Many of the Jerusalem youths wore yellow rectangle signs stuck to their T-shirts or jackets that read, "Kissinger Die — The People of Israel Live." Kissinger had left Israel earlier in the day for Alexandria, Egypt.

Others carried signs reading, "We Don't Want Auschwitz Boundaries" — a reference to the Nazi death camp in Poland during World War II.

In a speech to graduates of the military command's war college, Peres said Egypt in the proposed pact has abandoned previous demands that the settlement be linked to further Israeli withdrawals from territory captured in the 1967 Middle East war and settlements with Syria and Jordan.

In the latest of a series of appeals to the public by Israeli leaders to accept the government's willingness to enter a new peace with Egypt, Peres said the interim settlement would be more meaningfully guaranteed by the presence of Americans because U.N. forces have proved themselves powerless.

The pact proposes to post between 100 and 150 American civilian technicians in a new U.N. buffer zone in the strategic Mitla and Gidi passes from which Israeli forces will withdraw in the new agreement. They are expected to man early warning attack stations.

4 dead, 25 hurt in Argentina

Guerrillas down plane

TUCUMAN, Argentina (UPI) — Guerrillas set off a bomg planted in a drainpipe beneath an airport runway Thursday, causing the fiery crash of an army transport plane packed with Argentine federal troops as the plane was taking off.

An official air force statement said four persons were killed and 25 wounded.

The leftwing Montoneros guerrillas took responsibility for the spectacular explosion and said it was carried out in the name of Marcos Oastinsky, a rebel leader slain last week in Cordoba as he was being transferred in a police truck.

The air force said that when the plane was ready to take off, "subversive elements" detonated an explosive device a few yards in front of the plane.

Air force sources said explosives were planted in a drainage pipe under the runway. The statement said the U.S.-made C130 Hercules transport plane carried 114 "gendarmes," the country's frontier federal police who have joined in the army campaign to wipe out the guerrilla bands in the mountain jungles of Tucuman.

The explosion ripped a hole about 17 feet wide and seven feet deep in the runway and hurled flames and chunks of asphalt into the air.

"Only the skill of the crew prevented the criminal attack, caused by subversive elements, from reaching catastrophic proportions, which would have happened if the plane had fallen on the poor neighborhoods surrounding the airport or on the capital of Tucuman province itself," the statement said.

The craft bounced to a halt, slammed into the runway and burst into flames.

The fire set off by the blast sent black smoke visible for miles billowing into the sky. Firemen were still battling the flames two hours after the crash at about 1 p.m.

The air force command in Buenos Aires said in a communique the pilot, Capt. Jose Cocito, survived the crash and reported the explosion to his superiors.

Ambulances raced to the runway to pick up survivors at Benjamin Matienzo Airport in Tucuman, capital of a mountainous province with the same name 800 miles northwest of Buenos Aires.

The plane was carrying troops of the Gendarmeria, the border patrol, back to their base in San Juan, 800 miles west of Buenos Aires, military sources said.

Christmas letters will cost more

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Postal Rate Commission, public watchdog over mailing costs, announced a decision Thursday which is likely to mean that Christmas letters will cost 13 cents to mail.

On a 4-1 vote, the commission made permanent the "temporary" rates in effect since March, 1974. By law the Postal Service can impose a new temporary rate 30 per cent higher than the permanent base, after a three-month waiting period.

The House Post Office Committee had hoped to limit the increase to 12 cents by a measure it approved last month, but a committee source said now that the commission has acted the bill would probably never reach the House floor.

Because of the uncertainty, the Postal Service has begun printing two special Christmas stamps without price designations on them.

Technically, the commission ruling is advisory and the Postal Service Board of Governors could reject it by a unanimous vote. But this is considered highly unlikely because it would delay any increase for a full new round of hearings.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar had no comment on the proposed increase but complained about the delay for "more than two years of discussion and deliberation" before the decision.

"The Postal Service cannot continue to operate if necessary rate adjustments cannot be made until long after they are needed," Bailar said. "In an inflationary period, more responsive rate making is imperative," he said.

The commision did not give the Postal Service everything it asked. It approved a permanent base of only 9 cents instead of 10 cents for each additional ounce a first class letter weighs.

One member of the five-man board, Frank P. Saponaro, filed a dissent. He favored 9 cents instead of 10 cents for the first ounce, limiting the temporary rate to 12 cents if he had prevailed.

President Robert H. Busler of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers called the decision "an unfair imposition on personal communication between millions of Americans."

O'Brien emerges anew in Hoffa case

DETROIT (UPI) — The self-described foster son of James R. Hoffa emerged anew Thursday as the key figure in the disappearance one month ago of the former Teamsters International boss.

Federal authorities refused public comment on a Detroit Free Press report that linked Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien, a car he borrowed from the son of a reputed mafia chieftain, and Hoffa's disappearance.

But privately, federal inverstigators said the latest allegations "certainly" made the 30-year-old O'Brien a key figure in the case.

O'Brien already has undergone more than 10 hours of questioning by FBI agents during which O'Brien admitted he was in the same area on the same day that Hoffa vanished.

Hoffa was last seen July 30 standing outside a suburban Detroit restaurant where he reportedly planned to meet Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, a reputed mafia kingpin, and two other men.

Hoffa family members and investigators have placed O'Brien in the area of the restaurant about the time Hoffa was last seen. O'Brien was driving a car owned by Giacalone's son, Joseph. He told investigtors he used the car to deliver a fresh salmon to the home of Teamsters Vice President Robert Holmes Sr.

Hoffa's mother, ill for month, dies

DETROIT (UPI) — Mrs. Viola R. Hoffa died in a Detroit hospital Thursday, unaware that her son, former Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa, had been missing for nearly a month. She was 85.

Murray Chodak, a law partner of Hoffa's son, said the Hoffa family did not tell Mrs. Hoffa that her son was missing because "they were hoping against hope he would show." A Plymouth General Hospital spokesman said only that she died of natural causes.

Forest Service suspends some timber sales

The U.S. Forest Service suspended timber sales from nine national forests Thursday in a controversy over tree-cutting practices which environmentalists say damage forests and contribute to soil erosion and water pollution. The order, officials said, is directed at sales of timber from forests in Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, the area served by the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va.

The suspension is not being applied at present to national forests outside the region served by the 4th circuit. Environmentalists argue that clear-cutting damages forests and the environment, exposes fragile soils to erosion and can contribute to stream pollution because of run-off from denuded tracts.

Florida slayings may be one man's work

As many as five of South Florida's 10 unsolved slayings of young females this year may have been committed by the same murderer, Dade County's assistant medical examiner believes. "The similarities, at least in my mind, make me feel they were most probably by the same assailant," Dr. Ronald Wright said in Miami. There is another theory that at least two of those sex slayings might be connected to 33 similar killings in five Western states.

Judge orders in Social Security issue

A federal judge Thursday ordered the Social Security Administration to provide welfare recipients written explanations and a chance for a hearing before trying to collect heavy recent overpayments. The agency blamed computer foulups for overpayments to thousands of recipients of government payments under the Supplemental Security Income program. The total error has been estimated at more than $403 million.

Cigaret ad spending on the increase

Despite the 1971 ban on cigaret promotions on radio and television, the tobacco industry is steadily pouring more money into cigaret advertising, the Federal Trade Commission said Thursday. Industry cigaret advertising spending increased from $247.5 million in 1973, to $306.8 million in 1974, nearing the all time high of $314.7 million spent during the year before the radio-television ban was imposed. Newspapers, magazines, billboards, and direct advertising were used more heavily by the industry in 1974 than in the previous year.

Venezuela to nationalize U. S. oil firms

President Carlos Andres Perez will formally nationalize the single largest source of U.S. oil imports Friday, ending more than 60 years of foreign oil company operations in Venezuela. Perez, 53, will sign into law a 27-article oil nationalization bill which stipulates terms for the compensated state takeover of the nearly $5 billion in assets held by a score of U.S. and other foreign oil companies at the end of this year.

As of Jan. 1, 1976, the 2.5 million barrel per day Venezuelan oil industry will be run by the government through a central agency called "Petroven."

Schlesinger seeks Japan assurances

Defense Secretary James Schlesinger arrived in Tokyo Thursday to get assurances from Japanese leaders that American naval and air units based in Japan could be thrown into action in case of an attack by North Korea on the South. Earlier in South Korea a senior American commander told Schlesinger he could throw back a North Korean attack in nine days if he had the support of B52 bombers based in Okinawa.

Portugal leaders meet around-the-clock

Portugal's military rulers held around-the-clock meetings in Lisbon Thursday to head off an armed confrontation between leftist and moderate officers bitterly divided on the formation of a new government. The moderate commander of the central military region, Brig. Franco Charais, kept his troops on "maneuvers," heightening left-wing fears of a military march on the capital.

President Francisco da Costa Gomes called the virtual non-stop meetings after he was booed into silence by a crowd of 35,000 demonstrators Wednesday night demanding that pro-Communist Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves, chief target of military moderates, stay at his post.

Dist. 21 OKs $13.4 million 75-76 budget

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education members Thursday gave final approval to their $13.4 million budget for 1975-76.

The board added expenditures totaling $33,300 to the originally proposed $13,404,877 budget total before giving its final approval. Those additions were made in the following areas:

- $3,400 was added to the contractural services area to pay a Xerox machine service bill from last year which arrived this year.

- $12,000 was added to the teacher-aide salary category to pay three preschool teacher aides. The aides were included in last year's budget but were inadvertently left out of the new budget because of a program change, said James Gochis, Dist. 21 business manager.

- $5,400 was added to the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund allocation to pay for Title III renewal project personnel.

- $12,500 was added to the maintenance employe insurance fund to cover new state requirements for Workmen's Compensation insurance.

Although the district expects to receive $11,918,000 in tax revenue, the difference between revenue and expenditures will be made up from the $3.97 million surplus from last year's budget.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board met in executive session to determine its next step in teacher negotiations. At press time, the executive session was still in progress.

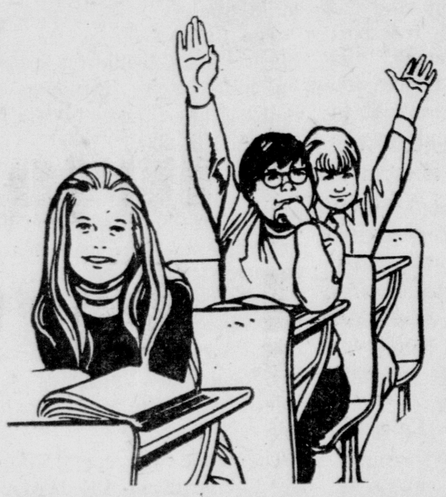

The board's negotiators declared an impasse in contract talks Monday after meeting with teachers for nine hours. Teachers refused the board's most recent offer of a 10 per cent increase in salary and fringe benefits. Teacher negotiators said they wanted a minimum 15 per cent increase in their present financial package.

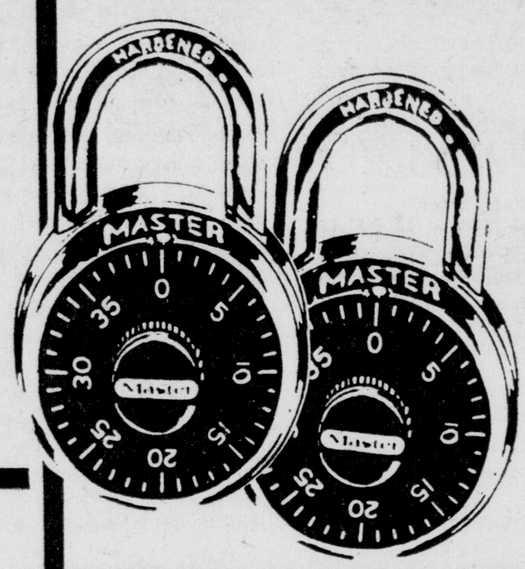

But about 330 rank-and-file teachers voted Wednesday to send their negotiators back to the bargaining table to resume talks as soon as possible. Because the board has declared an impasse, the next step in the talks would be hiring of a mediator to settle the impasse.

Teachers were back in the classroom today. having chosen not to strike.

Teachers seek to force pact talks resumption

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers will meet today to discuss action "to force the hand" of the board of education in an effort to get back to the bargaining table in salary talks.

District teachers will meet at about 10:30 a.m. at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster, Mount Prospect, with union leaders "to discuss a course of action," said Alma Parrish, head of the teachers' union.

"We have been unable to reach a full agreement," said Mrs. Parrish. "We're waiting for them (school board members) to make the next move."

WHEN ASKED if the board had made an offer to the teachers, Mrs. Parrish said, "I don't think so. They may think they have, but we're far apart."

When asked whether teachers will be planning a strike at today's meeting, Mrs. Parrish said, "I don't know. A strike is one course of action. But I can't comment until after the meeting," she said.

Though money is acknowledged by teachers to be the prime concern in the negotiation talks, there is another problem that has caused an apparent stalemate between teacher and board negotiators.

TEACHERS ARE demanding a say in how their work force will be reduced should the situation become necessary because of declining enrollments.

So far, the board has been reluctant to relinquish that power to the teachers.

"We'd like to be in the classroom come Tuesday," said Mrs. Parrish. "We're thinking about action to force their hand so we can meet again," said Mrs. Parrish.

AT AN EARLIER negotiation meeting, the board proposed a 2 per cent cost-of-living pay raise, in addition to the 4 per cent raise all teachers receive for another year of experience. Teacher negotiators refused the offer.

In 1970, Dist. 59 teachers staged a one-day strike against the district. The strike was the first conducted by Northwest suburban teachers.

Adding to the negotiations problem is a $1.7 million deficit projected by the district this year. Teachers, however, said they "weren't ready to agree," with the district's financial picture as posed by the administration. "We want to do our own analysis," said Toni Kane, teacher negotiator.

School taxes to go down despite budget increase

Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Board of Education Thursday approved a $13.75 million budget, up 6.6 per cent over last year.

Despite the increased spending, district officials predict taxpayers will pay less in school taxes this year.

The budget has been on public display for the last 30 days, and a public hearing was held Thursday.

The budget includes a 13 per cent increase in the building fund, the majority of which will cover an increase in custodial salaries.

The board approved a new agreement with district custodians Thursday, which called for a 10 per cent average increase. The increased salaries are expected to cost the district about $60,000.

THE DISTRICT'S tax rate is expected to drop more than 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation. That will save the average taxpayer, whose home is assessed at $10,000, about $10 in school taxes.

Last year's tax rate for Dist. 25 was allmost $2.85 per $100 assessed valuation. This year, the rate is estimated to be a little more than $2.74 per $100 assessed valuation, said Dan Suffoleto, business manager.

Suffoleto said he anticipates a continued drop in district taxes next year. He estimated taxes should drop another 4 cents per $100 assessed valuation next year.

Revenue to the education fund is estimated at about $10.5 million, an 8 per cent increase over last year's $9.77 million. State aid to the district is expected to increase by 7.2 per cent from $4.8 to $5.2 million.

Arlington Heights' first discotheque at Brass Rail

A new discotheque, the Giraffe, is planned to open next month at the Brass Rail Steak 'N Stuff restaurant, 2121 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The discotheque will feature recorded dance music from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. in a new addition north of the restaurant building, said Tony Torres, Brass Rail manager.

The approximate opening date is Sept. 23, he said.

Admission to the Giraffe probably will be $1. Inside there will be several bars.

Work on the discotheque room is nearing completion, Torres said. Rezoning for the south Arlington Heights Road restaurant was approved by the village board in 1967.

Other Giraffe discotheques are on Mannheim Road in Schiller Park, in the Oakbrook Sheraton Hotel and in Champaign, Ill.

The Giraffe at the Brass Rail will be next to the Gatehouse Apartments, 2134 S. Goebbert Rd., a popular "singles" apartment complex, which should help make the discotheque a success, Torres said.

The Giraffe will be the first discotheque in the village.

Notice Re: Labor Day Garbage Service

Labor Day is a holiday for our men, one of 6 during the year on which, per our contract, no garbage service is provided and no credit given.

As most residents know, these 6 holiday-service omissions are equalized among our 3 routes so that no route receives more than 2 during the normal year. For Labor Day, it's the "turn" of our Tuesday-Friday routes.

Accordingly, next week we will service Monday routes on Tuesday, and the next service for Tuesday-Friday routes after Friday, August 29 will be on Friday, September 5.

Under our equalization system, this will be the first holiday-service omission for Tues.-Fri. routes since last Thanksgiving.

We appreciate your understanding.

64,000 acres with more to come

Forest Preserve—county's big landholder

by STEVE FORSYTH

The Forest Preserve District is the largest landholder in Cook County — and not by accident.

The district has added continuously to its acreage and fought off repeated attempts to gain the land for other uses. Its holdings have grown to more than 64,000 acres, and it has statutory permission to acquire 10,000 additional acres. It now accounts for about 10 per cent of all county land.

District officials cannot predict accurately the future of the district's size, because the statutory limit could be increased by the Illinois General Assembly, if necessary. But they can say that the district will grow, and that attempts to whittle away its holdings will be firmly resisted.

Northwest suburban residents have about 16,420 acres of preserve land for their convenient use, including the new Highland Woods golf course in the Paul Douglas Preserve near Roselle and Algonquin roads but not counting the Des Plaines River preserves.

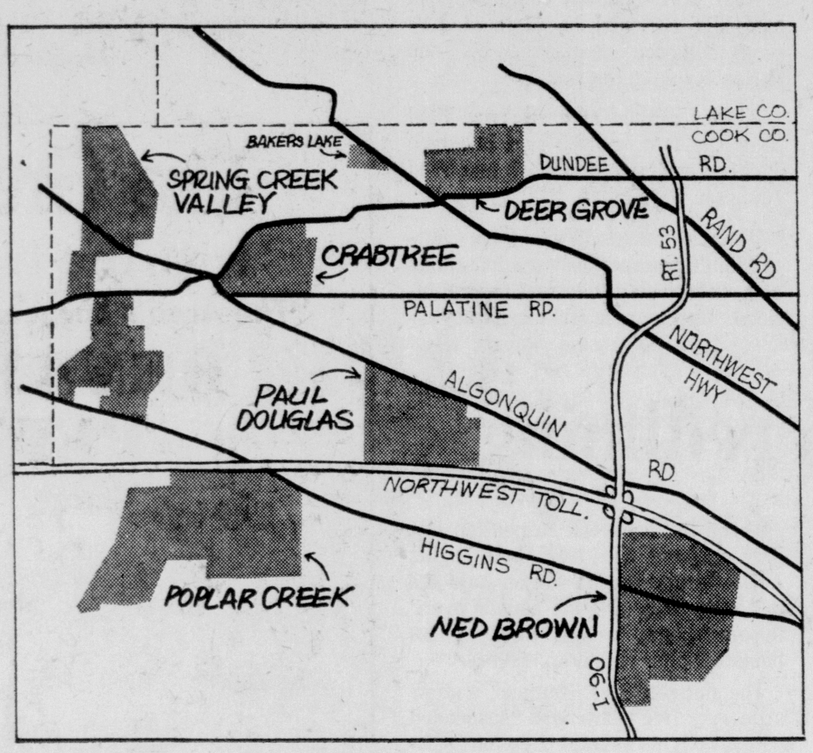

THE BUSSE Woods retention basin and recreation area is under construction, and promises a variety of uses, including a ski hill.

A big portion of the district's holdings is undeveloped, however, or in early stages of restoration. "A lot of it is still relatively raw land," said Richard Buck, chief landscape architect for the district.

He can list several proposals for land in the Northwest preserves, particularly Poplar Creek, Spring Creek Valley, and the Douglas preserves. "They can't all happen at once," he said, "because we have over 64,000 acres and we have to balance our expenditures." The Busse Woods project is getting a large share of development funds for this area.

Buck can point to maps of the district lands and talk about proposed lakes, riding trails and picnic grounds, although plans can change depending on availability of funds. "It's a matter of timing," Buck says.

For example, a 228-acre fishing lake proposed for the Douglas Preserve south of Algonquin Road must await a state highway improvement project, because a stretch of Algonquin Road must be raised to avoid flooding.

THE COUNTY FOREST Preserve District occupies more than 16,000 acres in the Northwest suburban panhandle of Cook County, and more acquisitions are expected as part of the district's policy of growth.

BUCK SAYS with certainty that residents will see more bicycle paths. "You'll see more bicycle trails in the future," he said, "because what we have has been well-received." He said the Palatine bike trail will go over Dundee Road when the road is rebuilt, and will continue into the Deer Grove forests.

"We'd like to provide things that can be done in the wide open without violating conservation or people's use of preserves," Buck said.

Snowmobile fields have been provided on an experimental basis, Buck said, because the district believes it can serve the needs of a large group of people without damaging the natural surroundings. Fields for radio-controled model airplanes also have been provided because enthusiasts need open space and have nowhere else to go.

Although some uses are for a limited number of persons, Buck said, "Everyone is richer for the fact that they have these options."

"Still, we have to have nice places for 5½ million people to go that can't be worn out," he said. The district also is committed to wildlife refuges that can be maintained in natural condition.

THE NORTHWEST suburbs have a combination of all these uses in its seven sites: Ned Brown, Poplar Creek, Paul Douglas and Spring Creek Valley Forest Preserves, Crabtree Nature Center and Baker's Lake Wildlife Refuge. The district also maintains extensive public land along the Des Plaines River between the Lake County line and Riverside, serving the Northwest area in Wheeling, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines.

"We'll probably acquire land where land is available, Buck said, "but it won't be in the inner city, because we can't get large enough pieces."

Growth and defense of holdings rest in the hands of the Advisory Committee to the Board of Forest Preserve Commissioners, headed by Gilbert H. Scribner Jr.

The advisory committee is made up mostly of prominent Chicago business people: Lester Crown, Harold Byron Smith, C. Virgil Martin, Frederick Jaicks, Dr. Walter Johnson, John H. Perkins, Lawrence B. Perkins, Mrs. Frederick W. Spiegel and Matthew Rockwell.

Scribner is the latest in a short series of chairmen of the committee, which was formed in 1926. The committee is known for the longevity of its members and its strict adherence to policy.

THE VOICE of the committee carries weight with the commissioners. Most land acquisition projects are examined closely, and often personally, by the committee members. Scribner says he probably has seen every piece of land the committee has been asked to consider while he has been chairman.

Scribner sums up the job of the committee briefly. "We determine if the land is suitable and if the price is right."

Most requests for land have been fended off by the committee. Schools, villages and park districts often have sought or tried to purchase pieces of the district. The committee routinely informs them that the district doesn't own the land, doesn't have the power to sell it and will not restrict use of any part to any particular interest group. Land is taken only by condemnation, and only with the tacit approval of the district.

The committee has fought the state, local municipalities and the federal government, when necessary.

Following World War II, the government attempted to claim part of 1,100 acres of forest preserve land that had been loaned for secret research on the atomic bomb project. Robert P. Patterson, secretary of war, insisted the southwest Cook County location was the best Midwestern site the department could find.

THE ADVISORY committee at that time said the land was one of the finest pieces of forested land in the county and recommended tempoary continuance of federal occupancy, only on a small portion. The decison stood.

John J. Duffy, former president of the Board of Forest Preserve Commissioners, said in a policy document drawn up for the district, "We ensure that our land acquisition program is well-planned and properly executed; that our lands are held and not dissipated by allocation to various and sundry other purposes than that for which acquired . . . and that all citizens are treated equally."

The Forest Preserve District has built a reputation of strength against challenges and a history of growth in one of the nation's most urbanized areas. Buck says, "Development in the future will be consistent with development in the past."

MATS good tool for RTA Ryan says

by STEVE FORSYTH

The Metropolitan Area Transportation Council can be a valuable tool for the Regional Transportation Authority, James T. Ryan, Arlington Heights Village president, said Thursday.

Ryan is one of eight suburban Cook County appointees to the 26-member council established by the Illinois General Assembly. The council is empowered to have public hearings and make recommendations to the RTA about transit service.

"It can be a tremendous link with the public," Ryan said, because all the members must be local elected officials or members of mass transit districts.

THE EIGHT appointees, announced Wednesday afternoon, met Thursday morning with members of the County Board and D. Daniel Baldino and Joseph A. Tecson of the RTA.

Ryan said the council can be effective if it gets off to a good start. The 13 Chicago members have not been named, nor have a few from the five outlying counties, but Baldino and Tecson Thursday told the eight suburban council members to begin duties as soon as possible.

Ryan said he believes the suburbs need some definite action to obtain public transportation services. He agreed that suburban communities have not received their share of RTA funds, but said the RTA board has had to look at immediate needs, particularly the Chicago Transit Authority.

The suburbs have half the population in the RTA area but are not getting half the RTA funds, Ryan said.

THE QUESTION of a 5 per cent gasoline tax to raise money for the RTA has been avoided by the RTA board, and Ryan said he has no opinion yet on further sources of income for the RTA.

He said he and other members of the council will begin familiarizing themselves with the RTA activities and policies before making any recommendations.

Village Pres. Louis Barone, Hanover Park, also was appointed to the council, giving the Northwest suburbs two positions in the new organization.

Ryan said the legislature gave the council wide latitude in its powers, even though it cannot conduct official business. "We're as close to the people as anyone can be," Ryan said, referring to the requirement that the council members be local officials.

Black Panthers' suit

FBI informant sought for trial

An FBI attorney told a federal judge in Chicago Thursday that local officials cannot find William O'Neal, an FBI informant wanted for questioning by attorneys for survivors of a 1969 raid on a Black Panther party apartment.

U. S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry then told the attorney, Arnold Kanter, that he must get in touch with Atty. Gen. Edward Levi and the chief U. S. marshal to find out if their offices know O'Neal's whereabouts.

During the day's proceedings, Kanter, chief of the civil division for the U. S. attorney's office, agreed to produce another government witness for questioning — former Panther leader Nathaniel Junior.

BOTH O'NEAL AND Junior were key government witnesses in the "hit squad" trial of former Chicago Police Sgt. Stanley Robinson. Both were given new jobs and identities after the trial.

The survivors' attorneys, G. Flint Taylor and Jeffrey Haas, want to question Junior because he and O'Neal were "trusted companions in 1969 and 1970 and he (Junior) may have evidence concerning his and O'Neal's role in the raid."

Edward Levi

A $38.2 million civil suit was filed after the Dec. 4, 1969 raid in which Panther leaders Mark Clark and Fred Hampton were killed.

The suit charges former Cook County State's Attorney Edward Hanrahan and other county, city and federal officials with murder and conspiracy.

Walker signs 2 bills to crack down on redlining

Gov. Daniel Walker, Thursday in Chicago signed into law two measures designed to crack down on redlining — the process of refusing home loans to minorities or those who live in less-prosperous neighborhoods.

One bill, sponsored by state Rep. Robert Downs, D-Oak Park, prohibits banks and savings and loan associations from denying loans because of geographical considerations.

It also prohibits financial institutions from discriminating on the basis of sex, marital status, race or national origin in extending loans.

The second bill, sponsored by Rep. Michael Holewinski, D-Chicago, requires financial institutions to disclose by zip code and census tract the areas where they lend money for buying homes and for home rehabilitation.

Illinois briefs

Sex-grass test backed

Southern Illinois University President Warren Brandt reasserted in Carbondale Thursday his support of an SIU experiment on marijuana and sex which Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., has termed "outrageously irrelevant."

The experiment to be carried out by Dr. Harris Rubin, a psychologist associated with the SIU School of Medicine, includes an effort to measure the effect of smoking marijuana on sexual response. Proxmire, in a statement Wednesday, accused the government of squandering $1 million on the experiment.

Rubin said of Proxmire's criticism, "I know it's not going to kill the program."

He said the research will have several functions, one of which will be to determine the effect of marijuana on sex hormones.

Braniff expands service

Braniff International airlines said in Chicago Thursday it will begin early morning service between Chicago, Kansas City and Houston starting Monday.

Richard Hoyd, Braniff's regional sales director, said the jet flight will depart O'Hare International Airport at 7 a.m. and arrive in Kansas City at 8:15 a.m. and in Houston at 10:20 a.m.

He said the flight provides the earliest morning arrival in Kansas City and Houston from Chicago.

Need grain inspction: NFO

Dale Nass, Illinois president of the National Farmers Organization, said in Peoria Thursday a better inspection program is needed for grain shipped from the United States overseas.

"We need to have some kind of quality control program," Nass said. "We've seen, when longshoremen loaded our grain in the Golf of Mexico, a stream of water and sand going right into the hold of the ship along with the grain.

9,000 miners off jobs

A walkout by United Mine Workers members that began more than two weeks ago in Douglas County over shift rotation had idled about three-fourths of the state's 12,000 UMW miners by Thursday.

Some will spend Friday in U.S. District Court at Danville where Judge Henry Wise has scheduled a round of contempt, temporary restraining order and injunction hearings in connection with the walkout.

A spokesman for the Illinois Coal Operators Assn. at Springfield Thursday said 28 mines were idled by the walkout, two more than Wednesday, among more than 50 in Illinois.

Stewardess sues airline

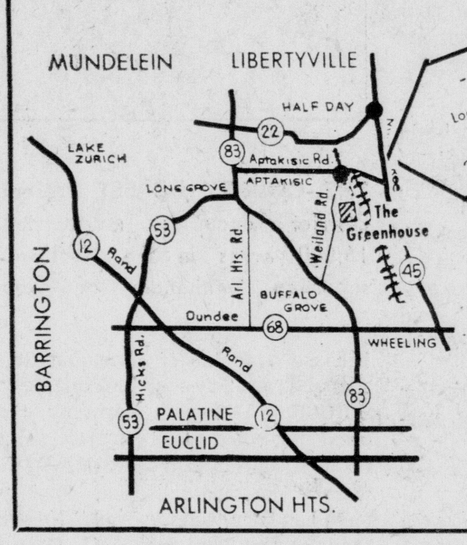

An American Airlines stewardess filed a sex discrimination suit in U.S. District Court, Chicago, Thursday, charging she was "unlawfully suspended" for being too fat.

Mrs. Karen G. Romano, of Peotone, charged the one-week suspension last May violated the 1964 Civil Rights Act. Attorney Donald Parker said she has been "four and six pounds over" the maximum weight limit of 128 pounds for her height of 5-feet-6.

The suit said Mrs. Romano, a stewardess for five years, was "suspended without pay on several occasions solely by reason of the defendant's maximum weight requirements which are and continue to be discriminatory on the basis of sex."

Women's weight requirements are "different from" and "more restrictive than" men's, the suit charged.

Many teacher units set for strikes

IEA chief a busy man these days

LOOKING LIKE AN aging John Denver, state IEA Pres. Woody Lee is busy these days advising local union groups in their tougher-than-usual fights to reach contract settlements with financially pressed districts.

by MARILYN McDONALD

Woody Lee does a lot of traveling these days.

As president of the Illinois Education Assn. (teachers' union), Lee has about 70 local organizations around the state that might strike.

He's been making a whistlestop tour of those districts, urging teachers to stick together and fight for their rights. He's walked a few picket lines this year, and he was in the Northwest suburbs this week, promising to walk a few more if need be.

Lee, a slender, energetic former social studies teacher from Danville, has been IEA president since 1974. He's an ordained Baptist minister and a former newspaperman so he knows how to find an audience and hold them. Lee was wiping perspiration from his brow and holding an audience of 330 Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 teachers Wednesday, urging them to "keep the faith."

"THE KEY THING is to stick together. The road may be long and hard, but it's important to be united," he said. "I wish you the best of luck in getting a contract you can be proud of."

Teachers have a lot to be proud of, Lee said later. They've won annual contract battles "under the law of the jungle."

This year, things were to have been different. A collective bargaining law was predicted to pass the Illinois General Assembly, forcing school boards to recognize the teacher unions and deal honestly with them. Since that bill's defeat, Lee said many school boards have simply refused to deal with their local union.

"We thought we were going to get the thing passed. Boards have now said, 'we just aren't going to deal with you anymore,' " Lee said.

L E E SAID BOARD animosity, coupled with the inflating economy, has resulted in more unsettled districts than usual. "Last year at this time, we had 225 districts unsettled and five strikes. This year we have 387 districts unsettled and 70 districts contemplating strikes," Lee said.

"The price and wage freeze under the Nixon administration really hurt teachers," Lee said, tracing the beginning of the current economic woes. "We didn't get a 20 per cent raise like other professions did when the freeze was over.

"I don't know what the true cost-of-living figure is now, I just know that a dollar doesn't go as far as it used to," Lee said. "In some districts, they say they don't have the money for teacher salary requests. But research has shown that there is money, being put in budget categories other than salaries."

Lee also blamed contract problems on the advent of the professional board negotiator.

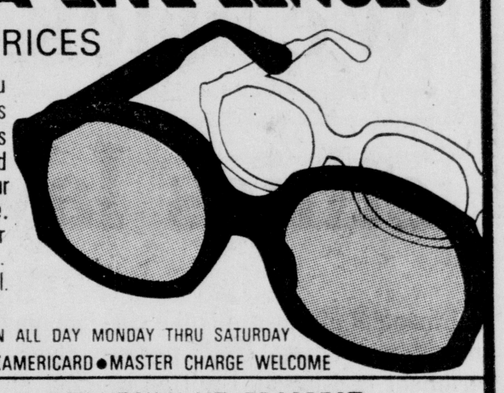

"THE TRAGEDY OF the 1970s is that school boards supposedly represent the community, but yet they hire a professional negotiator to negotiate on their behalf," he said. "On the other hand, teachers are not trained in the legal bargaining skills they should have," Lee said.

Lee said school boards are not being honest about what Gov. Daniel Walker's state education cuts will mean to them.

"These are the problems we face. We've got to have a law that says you sit at the table and present reliable, honest information," Lee said.

Lee had other appointments to keep Wednesday. That evening he was telling irate Dist. 211 teachers to keep the faith, the faith he proclaims on his license plates — "IEA."

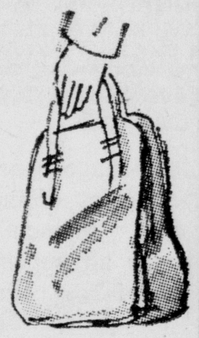

"I hope I'm back," he told Dist. 211. "If it means talking to a faculty meeting or if it means doing a little walking, I'll be back."

We back full ethics laws

Financial disclosure is the cornerstone of most ethics-in-government legislation. Until an official's financial interests are known, the public is unable to judge whether he is using his office to enrich himself.

The problem of what to disclose and who should disclose it has arisen in Buffalo Grove, where village officials are debating a proposed ethics ordinance.

Village Pres. Edward Fabish has expressed reservations about disclosure in the case of appointed members of the village's boards and commissions.

Making plan commissioners or zoning board members reveal their income and assets would be an unwarranted invasion of privacy and would discourage many qualified persons from accepting such posts, he said.

We understand Fabish's reservations. The concept behind local ethics laws is new. Some officials no doubt would resent being forced to bare their financial souls as a prerequisite to holding unpaid, part-time posts.

But the value of full disclosure is so great that the problems accompanying it must be tolerated. The record of suburban zoning activities is splattered with corruption and hanky-panky, much of which would have been deterred if the municipalities involved had effective financial-disclosure rules.

Indeed, appointed commission members, despite their key policy roles, have a lower visibility than elected officials, a fact that makes full disclosure especially desirable in their case.

We urge the village board to adopt a strict ethics ordinance that includes financial-disclosure rules for all appointive members of boards and commissions.

Tell me again how financial disclosure may prevent interested persons from serving the village.

American poet Oliver Wendell Holmes was born Aug. 29, 1809.

On this day in history:

• In 1852, Brigham Young proclaimed the "Celestial Law of Marriage," signifying his approval of polygamy more than one wife among Mormons, a practice later officially outlawed by the Church of the Latter-Day Saints.

• In 1960, the premier of Jordan and 11 others were killed when a time bomb exploded in his office.

• In 1965, American astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad landed safely to end the 8-day orbital flight of Gemini 5.

• In 1973, President Nixon was ordered by Judge John Sirica to turn over secret Watergate tapes but he refused and appealed the order.

A thought for the day: Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "Put not your trust in money, but put your money in trust."

Dateline 1775

(by United Press International)

BOSTON, Aug. 29 — Adm. Graves proposed to Gen. Gage that they attack seaport towns with a special force of from 800 to 1,000 men to safeguard British shipping. Gage, however, refused to go along with the aggressive move.

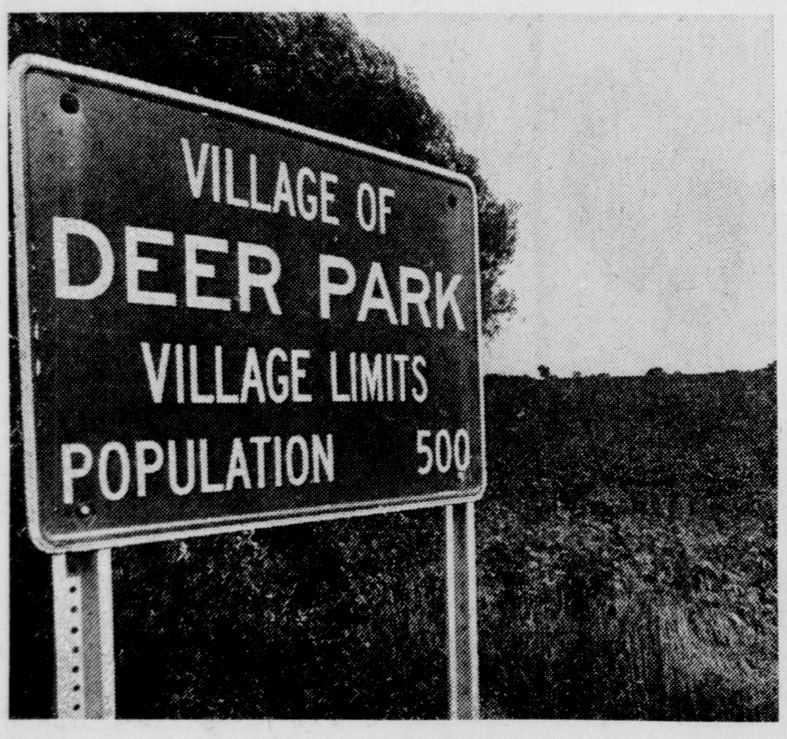

Remember Deer Park? Used to be a village

It's a tribute to the flexibility of American government — and the contrariness of many of our citizens — that Deer Park may be about to become a non-village.

Deer Park (pop. 832), in case you missed it, is a community huddled just east of Barrington in Lake County. There is no business district in Deer Park, just nice homes in rolling wooded settings.

The subject of dissolution came up recently when the village's government wanted to pave some roads, contract for police service and start a sewer study. But many residents argued that existing services were adequate; the board's "arrogance" angered some members of the community, and so they're circulating a petition to force dissolution of the government. (A first petition fell three names short, but the residents are trying again.)

The petition drive is nothing more than an example of the revolutionary idea that citizens have absolute power over their government. It's an idea that's gone out of vogue in our more sedate times, but it's a power that should never be forgotten. Whatever decision you reach, Deer Park, we're watching your governmental struggle with interest and curiosity.

Church controversy flares anew

I do not consider myself as a reactionary — but to Pastor Harold Albert's letter (Aug. 19, First Baptist Church, Arlington Heights) I feel compelled to react. I only wish he would have remained "an outsider" to our problems in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. He makes insinuations that are not true. As an "outsider," he obviously has little conception of what our Synodical controversy is all about. For example, there are no pastors or teachers in our Synod who have been found guilty of heresy.

Perhaps it is a matter of semantics — or talking past each other — but the trouble in our Synod is not a matter of "freedom of conscience" — or letting "the conservatives preach an error-free Bible." Nor is Scripture just "a fable." Nor does it cost us "nothing to live with it."

The turmoil in our church, as I see it, is political — not confessional. What Pastor Albert insinuates is that "moderates" in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod do not take Scripture seriously — at least, I understood his letter that way.

I hold my ordination vows very seriously — that I acknowledge the "canonical Books of the Old and New Testaments as the Inspired Word of God." I do not believe, as Pastor Albert understands the "moderates," that the Bible contains errors.

I believe that Jesus Christ, by prophecy and fulfillment is the heart, core, and center of everything God has to say to us. As Luther said, "If you do not find Jesus Christ in every Word of Scripture then supply Him."

That, I confess, is what it is all about. What else is there except Christ — crucified, risen for us all — with no one excluded? To Him I commit my life and ministry. To Him be glory forever and ever!

Rev. Carl F. Thrun
Trinity Lutheran Church
Rolling Meadows

We hear so much lately from the moderate group in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod about loss of congregational autonomy. Moderates do not exactly say that Dr. Preus is denying the congregations autonomy, but it seems they fear he might take it from them.

Think for yourself. Would you believe that a synod which had autonomy of the congregation written into its rules and by-laws, would lose it after having enjoyed it for over 125 years? Especially since synod has done nothing to warrant suspicion. Synod has changed nothing. It is the moderate group which has introduced change.

Another expression heard so often in moderate camps is "freedom of conscience." Why? Why suddenly should everyone teaching publicly be permitted to teach anything he wants to? God tells us what He expects to be taught.

We wish to quote sections of a letter we read in The Herald, Aug. 19. It is the article, "A Matter of Theology," by Pastor Harold I. Albert, Arlington Heights. He has stated quite clearly what will happen if error is tolerated in the church.

He states, "The moderates, in the name of freedom of conscience, are willing to let the conservatives preach and teach their view of literal interpretation of an error-free Bible. They can coexist. It's only a fable anyway, and it costs them nothing to live with it.

"The conservatives, in the name of integrity of Scripture, cannot allow the moderates to preach and teach that the Bible contains errors. It will cost them everything if they do. They lose their very foundation.

"It is a welcome change to see the conservatives winning some of these battles that in most denominations the liberals have won. The normal result is schism. The conservatives will make a mistake if they will try to prevent it. They will find themselves on the losing side in the future."

This shows us adherence to Scripture is essential.

Herald produces results for him

I want to use this means of expressing high regard for your newspaper and those of your staff with whom we have had contact. We, of course, have dealt with Kay Grimm since we started advertising several months ago. She has always been helpful. In this connection we have also advertised in other "suburban" editions of various papers, having received only one response from that source — The Herald, however, has produced results from the beginning and continues to do so.

Three or four weeks ago, I was interviewed on the phone by a young lady whose name escapes me and photographed by one of your staff people in our office. With some misgivings I awaited the article hoping that it would not be a somewhat typical P.R. blurb. The article was a masterpiece of accurate quotation and interpretation. Please extend our congratulations to your staff members who were responsible. Incidentally, we have had many compliments as a result and at last count had received 15 (possibly 16) good leads.

Correction

Owing to a mechanical error, a word was left out of the letter from Carol McGrath of Des Plaines which appeared in the Fence Post Aug. 27. The corrected sentence should read, "The supermarkets seem to be encouraging state and local governments not to pass laws which will require the prices to be stamped on the products they sell."

'Conservative' view

In recent issues of The Mount Prospect Herald you have published quotations of so-called "moderate" pastors of Lutheran church - Missouri Synod congregations in this area and I would like to suggest that you also do this with regard to "conservative" pastors.

I feel that both sides should be heard.

Des Plaines officials hit

It seems the voters and taxpayers no longer have any say in what happens in our City of Des Plaines. That the aldermen we elect pay no attention as to what the people they represent might want. To obligate us with general obligation bonds for parking facilities that they realize will not pay for itself, seems very unfair. When the already over burdened taxpayer will never use the parking lots that will be free to city employes.

I should like to ask the mayor and aldermen why it wasn't published in all Des Plaines papers about the meeting when they voted against revenue bonds and for obligation bonds.

There is nothing but parking lots in Des Plaines and half empty office buildings to bring the people to town.

Furthermore, does it seem reasonable that Des Plaines residents have no right to say whether or not the old City Hall remain, instead of destroying it and building another parking lot for the city employes to use free.

Pay tied to private sector

Senators, congressmen given 'comparability'

by STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON — For years, members of the Senate and House have wanted to increase their salaries but since 1969 haven't mustered the political courage.

But with the blessing of President Ford, Congress has now not only approved a pay raise for its members but made sure the salaries will get bigger and bigger every year without having to take another vote.

Senators and congressmen, who now make $42,500 a year, couldn't get themselves to fix a new salary for the job — say $50,000 or $60,000.

Instead they tied themselves into a program developed for the federal bureaucracy's lower echelons.

Under this program, the Civil Service Commission each year determines the difference between what the federal government and private industry pay for the same type of work. It's called comparability.

President Ford can let the commission's recommendation 8.6 per cent increase in the coming year go into effect or recommend a smaller increase which is subject to rejection by either the Senate or House.

The thinking behind comparability was to make sure that lower-level administrators, computer analysts and secretaries would not be lured into the private sector by bigger paychecks.

It was not designed for members of Congress. Nor was it meant to apply to Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, the Cabinet or the Supreme Court, who should be able to struggle along on the $60,000 plus salaries.

It would be impossible to get an accurate comparability rating for, let's say, a U.S. senator.

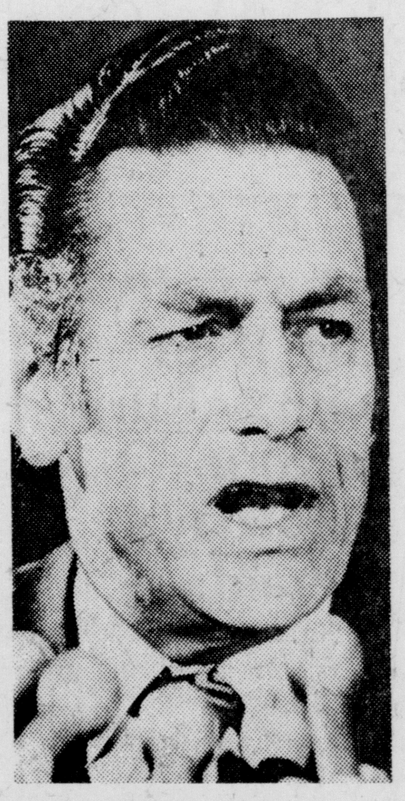

On one side, where, in the private sector, can you find someone who, with one vote, can restore military aid to Turkey, stop production of the supersonic transport plane or confirm a Supreme Court justice whose rulings could affect millions for generations.

On the other side, where, in the private sector, can you find someone with the fringe benefits that accrue to a senator. Who else, except a senator, can get as many as nine weeks of vacation a year, including the whole month of August. Who else can get paid trips overseas as part of inspection missions, sometimes to the best tourist haunts in the world.

In addition to that, senators can earn up to $15,000 in speaking fees. It used to be unlimited until the new campaign reform act went into effect this year. And more than a few senators are wealthy in their own right.

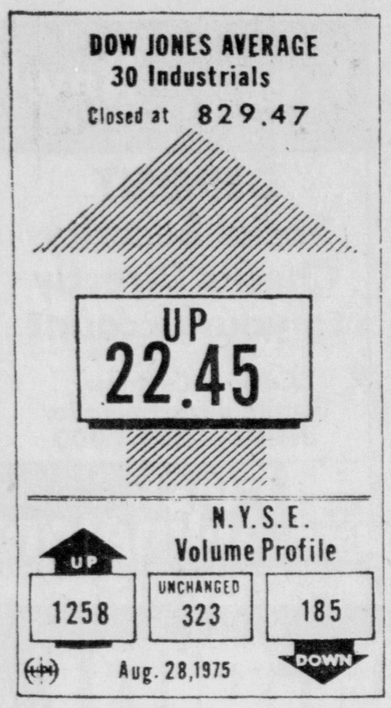

The argument for extending comparability to the nation's top government leaders is that too many of the good ones are leaving and too many good ones cannot be recruited because of low pay. That may be true in the Executive Branch.

But that doesn't seem to be the case on Capitol Hill. It's been a long time since a senator left except when he retired or the voters retired him. The exception was Iowa Sen. Harold Hughes, who left to continue his religious crusade.

Dow Jones soars 22 points

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market Thursday staged its sharpest rally in seven months amid indications the Federal Reserve Board would maintain a moderate monetary policy and may seek to lower interest rates.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 3.91-point gainer Wednesday, soared 22.45 points to 829.47. It was the best gain in the average since it climbed 26.05 points Jan. 27. It had been in a slump recently since reaching its 1975 high of 881.81 on July 15.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange totaled only 14,530,000 shares, slow by this year's standards. It was up from the 11,110,000 traded Wednesday. Many observers said short-covering — replacing borrowed shares sold earlier — playing a big part in the rally prior to the Labor Day holiday coming up.

SOME ANALYSTS said investors rallied behind statements by Fed Chairman Arthur F. Burns late Wednesday that the Fed did not plan to change its target of 5 to 5½ per cent in the growth of the nation's money supply and that the economic recovery would not be harmed by that policy.

Other averages also soared in the rally. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 1.97 to 86.40. The average price of an NYSE common share increased by 66 cents. Advances routed declines, 1,258 to 185, among the 1,766 issues crossing the tape.

Virtually every group advanced. Blue chips and glamors were the leaders, along with energy issues.

Walter Kidde led the actives, off 1/8 to 19 5/8 on 211,700 shares, including a block of 199,900 shares at 18 5/8. Polaroid followed, up 7/8 to 34¾ on 196,800 shares. Minnesota Mining was third, up 1 to 54¾ on 118,700 shares.

Prices closed sharply higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share climbed 19 cents. Volume totaled 1,360,000 shares, compared with 1,130,000 traded Wednesday.

Little impact seen in Chicago area

Natural gas price control may end

The Federal Power Commission acted Thursday to lift some natural gas price controls this winter but the move is expected to have little impact on the Chicago suburbs.

The FPC said the decision, which could allow consumer gas prices to rise as much as 6 per cent, was made to head off a possibly crippling natural gas shortage.

President Ford, addressing a group of 15 state governors Thursday in Washington, D.C., won their backing for the move and other possible decontrol steps. Russell Sault, vice president for administration for Northern Illinois Gas Co., said the utility expects to serve all its customers during the winter months. "The impact in this area would be minimal. Barring government intervention, we don't expect to curtail anybody," he said of the FPC decision.

NI-GAS FAVORS decontrol of "new" natural gas prices as a means of increasing exploration for resources. The move would mean an increase in customer bills averaging an estimated 8 per cent a year, Sault said.

The only possible change in NI-Gas customers' service bills anticipated for the coming heating season would be due to a "purchased gas adjustment" system. The charge varies according to the utility's cost for buying fuel.

The FPC's Thursday decision, criticized as a backdoor method of gaining natural gas price deregulation without Congressional approval, would allow industries to buy gas during the next two winters at any price they are willing to pay. Industries hit the hardest by a natural gas shortage could participate in the purchasing agreement.

Interstate gas is under FPC controls with a price limit of 52 cents per thousand cubic feet. Intrastate sales, within a state where gas is produced, are generally higher. Prices for intrastate gas are sometimes higher than $1 per thousand cubic feet.

SEVERAL GOVERNORS at the Thursday meeting with Ford said his major message was a plea for support for legislation to allow emergency interstate sales of gas without price limits. The group voted to permit such a bill for a 180-day period.

Gov. Milton Schapp of Pennsylvania said Ford's deregulation ideas "will create a $32 billion a year consumer ripoff." Gov. Philip Noel of Rhode Island said, "It's like a Band-Aid. Somebody needs surgery and he, Ford, is talking about a Band-Aid. We have a hell of a problem developing and there is no way to deal with it this winter."

Gov. Thomas Salmon of Vermont said "On the short term, to get us through this winter, I sense the governors will work with the President." Salmon is head of the National Governors' Conference energy committee.

Edison wins 6.87% rate increase

The two-rate increase granted by the ICC amount to $206 million, $40 million less than Edison sought.

A COMPANY SPOKESMAN said there is no immediate prospect of another request for higher service rates "but we will have to look for a favorable rate of return." The commission decision allows Edison an 8.75 per cent rate of return on an original cost asset base of some $4 billion. The previous authorized rate of return was 8.27 per cent. "We'd been hoping for something in the neighborhood of 9 per cent," the spokesman said.

Edison has 2.5 million residential customers and 230,000 commercial, industrial and government customers in northern Illinois.

Marvin Lieberman, ICC chairman, said the increases are necessary "because of the drastic inflation that has occured, particularly in the construction field. We think the reliability of service would be in jeopardy if the increases had not been granted."

Lieberman said customers who use 300 kilowatt hours of electricity a month in Chicago will experience an average 75-cent increase in monthly service bills. Average customers in the Chicago suburbs and the Rockford area will pay an added $1.15 a month for 500 kilowatt hours of service. Families drawing added power will pay higher amounts.

THE ICC ORDER eliminated a price break for residential customers who have electric space heating. Space heating customers will now pay the same rate as other customers for the period of May through September. The service rate increase for space heating customers for the period will be between 17.3 per cent and 21.5 per cent.

An Edison spokesman said the space heating decision will affect all customers who have electric space heating and air conditioning.

Commenting on the new rate increase package, Thomas G. Ayers, Edison chairman and president, said, "While the rate increase authorized by the ICC is less than the amount requested 11 months ago, we appreciate the consideration given to our need for additional revenues. We hope the majority of our customers will understand this need which arises from the drastically higher cost of keeping them reliably supplied with electric service."

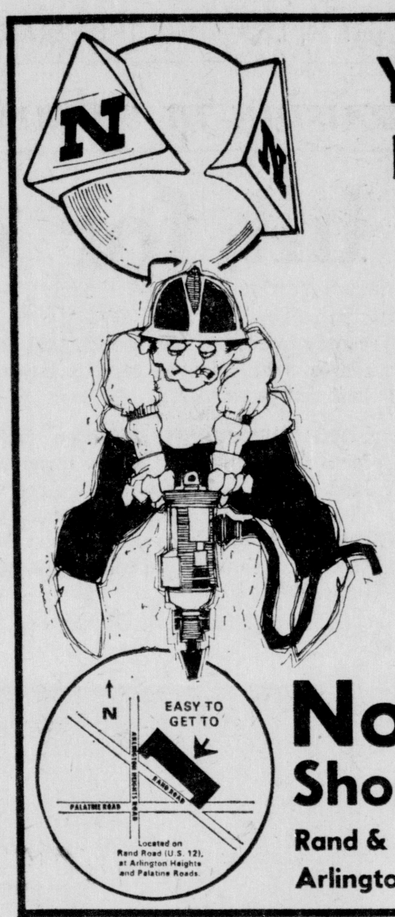

Edison's operating expenses and taxes increased $245 million during the year ending in July, compared to the prevous year. During the same period, the utility experienced a $13.5 million increase in debt costs. Edison will use the added revenues to finance a $4.3 billion construction program for the years 1975-79.

Need cited for housing in suburbs

Zoners hit for ending low-income bonus

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The County Zoning Board was criticized Thursday for eliminating from its new zoning ordinance for unincorporated suburban areas incentives to build low-income housing.

Representatives of the League of Women Voters and the Leadership Council for Metropolitan Open Communities cited a need for low-and moderate-income housing in the suburbs in urging that the bonus be reinstated.

The incentives, ordered removed from the proposed ordinance by Zoning Board Chairman Alex R. Seith, would have allowed 10 per cent more units in apartment buildings that serve low-income families.

AT A HEARING in Chicago's Civic Center, Seith also announced a moratorium on all rezonings by the county until after a series of hearings on the proposed ordinance in October.

Harry Gottlieb, representative of the Leadership Council, said there is a "scarcity of housing opportunities in the suburban area for people with limited incomes."

Reading a letter from the organization's directors, Gottlieb said it is difficult for developers to build housing with rents low enough to qualify for federal subsidy programs.

"A density bonus might make the difference," in making low-and moderate-income projects profitable, he said.

Gottlieb urged that the bonus be allowed in three of the proposed apartment-zoning categories.

SEITH, SAYING HE was responsible for deleting the housing density bonus from the ordinance, declared that overcrowding of sites for subsidized housing would give fuel to its opponents.

"There are already a lot of emotional objections to this," he said.

Calling a bonus for low-and moderate-income housing a "red flag," Seith said the federal government should increase rental subsidies rather than have the county "in effect take it out on neighboring landowners."

Gottlieb argued that housing is "a problem of great urgency" which requires cooperation on all levels of government.

Betty Cameron, a League of Women Voters representative, also urged reinstatement of the zoning incentives for low-income housing.

SEITH TOLD HER he thought the bonus would be illegal under exclusionary-zoning court precedents.

"The ordinance should be neutral," he said, explaining government agencies that support subsidized housing are better equipped than the zoning board to decide the suitability of housing sites.

Mrs. Cameron pointed to other types of density bonuses in the ordinance, but Seith said the bonuses for open space or for providing community facilities are areas in which the zoning board has the experience to judge.

U. S. Navy spokesmen from the Glenview Naval Air Station asked the county to reword one section that requires notification to persons buying land near an airport.

THE PROPOSED ordinance calls for a special warning to any buyer of land within one mile of an airport. The Navy urged instead that special noise-level maps for each airport be used by the county to decide when notice is required.

Lt. Commander L. K. Muller said it is noisier 2½ miles north of the air station than it is across the street to the east.

Muller praised a proposed ban on county rezonings for properties designated as hazardous by the Federal Aviation Administration because of their proximity to an airport.

Seith agreed with the Navy's suggestions.

He also noted at the beginning of the hearing that the proposed ordinance would require the County Board to file a written summary of reasons whenever it overrides a zoning board recommendation.

HE SAID CITIZENS will be able to comment on the proposed zoning maps at public hearings in each township and at a final hearing in Chicago in October.

Others who testified at the hearing included John Lundquist, 1519 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Elk Grove Township. He urged the county to retain the rural nature of the unincorporated area where he lives.

Lundquist criticized the lack of enforcement of current zoning laws against such nonconforming uses as vegetable stands. He said he feared enforcement would not improve under the proposed new ordinance.

Live theater returns

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Tuesday noon Arlington Park Theatre was in high gear. A rehearsal was about to begin. Stage hands were compiling last-minute props. Only the drapes in the outer lobby were missing and they had been sent out to be cleaned.

Tammy Grimes and Michael Allinson had just arrived the night before to reopen the Arlington theater in a relatively new play, "In Praise of Love." Confirmation of the show had been made only the week before.

One late rehearsal Monday evening, another one the next day. The show previewed Tuesday and Wednesday. The official opening was last night.

Landing "In Praise of Love" at the last minute to reopen Arlington Park Theatre represents a major accomplishment for managing director David Lonn. And it meant a hectic, bustling week readying the theater which had been closed since April.

THE SHOW IS brand new to Chicago though its credits are most impressive indeed.

"In Praise of Love" is Terence Rattigan's first major play in 12 years and his 14th to run on Broadway. It had a very successful run there last winter with Rex Harrison and Julie Harris in the lead roles.

Miss Grimes and Allinson, along with a supporting cast of Sam Gray and Gary Tomlin, have been performing the play for the past three weeks in Westport, Conn.

Little rehearsal here was necessary, except to acquaint all four with the theater itself. The play has never been done in-the-round before.

Yet, with only one rehearsal left to go, neither Miss Grimes nor Allinson appeared concerned. Tammy was tired, having slept only three hours the night before. But that's usual, she said . . . "A strange hotel, the night before an opening."

"The mystique that there is something complicated about switching to the round is just not true," said Allinson, "once you learn the geography of the room, and you can pick that up in one rehearsal. This is a good play to do in-the-round. It's naturally intimate with many personal relationships."

MISS GRIMES described "In Praise of Love" as a "romantic drama . . . how people deal with each other who are also losing each other."

"They refuse to admit their emotions," added her costar. The two play man and wife in the production.

"It's a marvelous play, marvelous parts and, like all of Rattigan, very good dialog. All the characters work. It's more than light entertainment. It's really a good play," continued Miss Grimes.

Tammy's unexpected one-week visit follows on the heels of a June appearance in Chicago when she starred downtown in "My Fat Friend," a somewhat controversial comedy that received mixed reactions.

"They like it everywhere but here. The audience was kinda put off by it. They either felt hostile to it or just didn't find it entertaining," she shrugged.

Her role in "My Fat Friend," like all other characters she plays, is marked by that very distinguishable, low, throaty voice which has decidedly helped to set off her image and career.

"My voice changed at 16. I dropped a few octaves. Actually, I sang high soprano for the Hallelujah Chorus in grammar school."

Next month Tammy begins rehearsals for "American Musical" opening later this fall on Broadway.

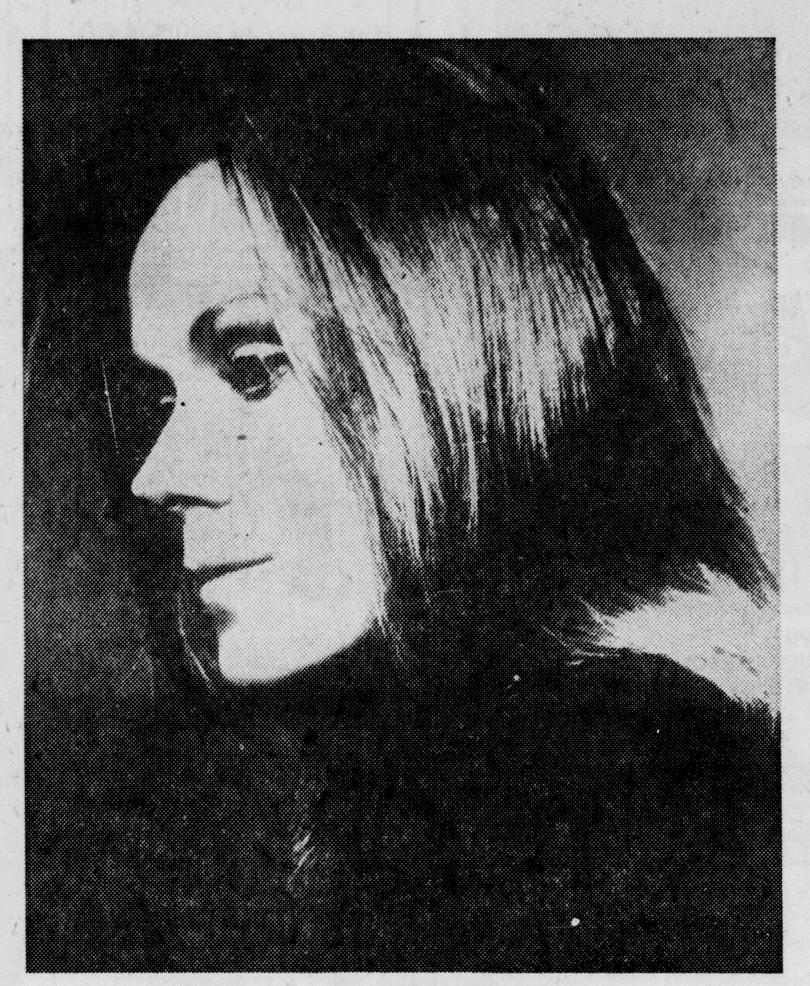

"IT'S THE STORY of how the American musical came about (including excerpts from some of the best ones), though the title will no doubt change because they are importing some of the best British composers to do it."

English actor Michael Allinson was last seen in Chicago when he replaced Anthony Quayle in "Sleuth." He later took the show on tour abroad.

Setting a fast and furious pace for itself after a four-month hiatus, Arlington Park Theatre opens another special one-week-only engagement Tuesday.

Lynn Redgrave will make her Midwest theatrical debut at Arlington in "The Two of Us," four separate playlets being directed by her husband, John Clark.

"In Praise of Love" continues only through Sunday.

1976 version of Paine's 'Common Sense'

by MONICA WILCH PERIN
(A review)

Take all of the political tracts and documents of the American Revolution, substitute the word "corporations" for all references to King George and the monarchy, and you have the platform of "Common Sense II."

Written by the Peoples Bicentennial Commission, "Common Sense II" (Bantam, $1.25) is a 1976 version of patriot Tom Paine's original "Common Sense," in which he urged the colonists to revolt against the English monarchy and establish an independent, democratic government.

Paine used simple language and logic to show that monarchies are not divine, that King George was tyrannical and that the American people had a right to overthrow that tyranny and secure their rightful freedoms.

ACCORDING TO THE authors of "Common Sense II," Americans today face a similar situation, but the tyranny is being imposed by the huge corporations which, the book contends, run our country and our lives.

To illustrate its point, the book throws out a barrage of statistics: The eight largest oil companies control 64 per cent of all known oil reserves, 29 corporations own 21 per cent of the cropland in America, the 200 largest U.S. corporations control two-thirds of the manufacturing and 43 per cent of the nation's wealth is held by a few families who own those corporations, such as the Rockefellers and the Mellons.

As for public participation in those firms, the book points out that 72 per cent of all corporate stock is owned by 1 per cent of the adult population.

USING THE techniques and arguments of the Tom Paine, the authors trace corporate power back to its origins and strip it of all the myths that perpetuate it. Corporations are compared to feudal lords who seized land and resources and forced the peasants to work as serfs. The corporate system is shown to be totally undemocratic and inimical to everything that the American Revolution stood for.

After its scathing indictment of the corporate system, the book proposes a Declaration of Economic Independence, calling for the establihment of a new economic order in which all Americans would participate under democratic principles. It points to companies in which this has been tried and worked.

THE BOOK IS discomforting, to say the least. On the one hand, it is a tirade with an undisguised viewpoint, and its facts and figures are suspiciously one-sized. On the other hand much of it hits home — especially when bolstered by the wisdom of the patriots like Thomas Jefferson, who warned against "the aristocracy of our monied corporaions who dare already to challenge our government . . ."

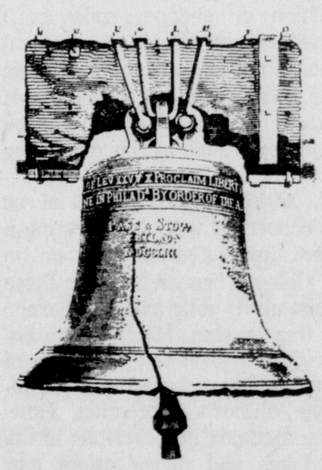

Is it sophistication or jadeness that makes us look askance at such revolutionary rhetoric today? Would we have doubted the credibility of Tom Paine's "Common Sense," like the Tories of that day who are now looked upon as the "bad guys" (or dummies)?

And when we reject such calls to revolution as this, but continue to complain of high prices, low salaries, unfulfilling jobs, are we like the reluctant colonists of whom Sam Adams said: "No people ever groaned under the yoke of slavery but what they deserved it . . .?"

If "Common Sense II" puts the American Revolution into a very modern perspective, a companion book, "Voices of the American Revolution," (Bantam, $1.75) treats the event as history but with a realism you probably didn't get in school.

THE AUTHORS give an overview of circumstances leading to the signing of the Declaration of Independence, then present an anthology of quotes from various revolutionary figures.

Together, the two books make you ponder whether, compared to the patriots, we really are a bunch of gutless wonders who are throwing away what our ancestors fought so hard for.

Astrologer tells clients what makes them 'tick'

HOLDING HER Ephimerus (the book with positions of the sun and moon at various dates) is astrologer Rosemary Clark. An Aquarius, she wears crystal jewelry for psychic power.

by BARBARA LADD

At a glance, the dark-haired young woman appears to be a typical, young suburbanite. Once she has your brith date, watch out. She has an enormous capacity to tell you who you are, what you like to eat, read, see, what makes you angry, and, in general, what makes you tick.

Rosemary Clark, a professional astrologer residing in Bolingbrook, works with her clients to "help them find their own self," is the way she explains it.

Though she often tells people things they might not like to hear about themselves, she says she has never had anyone angry or upset with her.

"Most of the time people come to me because they have a problem," she explained. "They are then very receptive to what I say."

In fact, Ms. Clark has even been asked to advise in several police cases.

SHE BECAME A professional astrologer five years ago, following five years of very intense study in the field of metaphysical philosophy and after having grown up in "a very occult family."

She researched on her own, took various courses pertaining to astrology and accumulated such a tremendous volume of material and knowledge that "I finally had to decide what to do with all of it," she said.

Certified by the American Federation of Astrologers, she chose astrology because it is "more scientific," she believes than many of the other areas of the occult, including palmistry and tarrot card reading.

"Apparently it was the right choice," added Ms. Clark, who is an Aquarius.

It takes a basic knowledge of geometry and astronomy to be an astrologer. The exact date and time of birth are then used to determine the locations of the sun and moons, and therefore the forces that influence your life, she explained.

"ONCE ALL THE scientific data is accumulated, it is time to analyze the vibrations. It is at this point that the astrologer must be a psychologist," she said.

Ms. Clark offers advice, suggesting ways to improve a person's life or misfortunes. "We've all got our skeletons," she said.

It takes Rosemary about four or five hours to prepare a good astrological reading. Her initial fee is $25.

Other services she offers include astrological birth control (a combination of the rhythm method with the relationships between sun and moon), progressions (the forecasting of trends, events and patterns of lifestyle development) and synastry (chart comparison between two individuals).

MS. CLARK IS staff editor of Astro-logic, an astrology journal, and has taught seminars in astrology in area park districts and at Joliet Junior College. Presently she is public relations director of the Midwest Astrological Association.

She says she has "never met one person who does not believe in astrology."

And to test her statement, Ms. Clark will be giving free capsule character readings to diners at the Magic Pan Creperie, Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg, Sept. 9 from 6 to 7 p.m. and 7:30 to 8 p.m.

'Ride a Rock Horse' not up to par for Daltrey

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

It takes a certain amount of guts for a great rock singer like Roger Daltrey to do a complete turnabout in musical sound on his solo albums as opposed to his hard rock work with The Who.

Two years ago, he adopted a soft, laidback sound for "Daltrey" (MCA records), his first solo effort. The record was a success, much because of the good songs and fine melodies written by Leo Sayer and Dave Courtney.

Daltrey's new solo album, "Ride a Rock Horse" (also MCA), has a much rockier sound, but the material is weaker, causing the album to fail for the most part.

ONCE PAST THE outstanding cover, with Daltrey as a centaur, one finds Daltrey time and again forced to breath life into a poor song with his fine singing. Far too often, even his singing is not enough.

Russ Ballard, formerly of the Zombies and Argent, deserves much of the blame because he produced the album, played on most cuts and contributed three songs. Of the Ballard material, only "Come and Get Your Love" is effective.

Roger Daltrey

For the rest, two songs by unknown pianist Paul Korda, called "World Over" and "Feeling," have good moments, and Daltrey is able to vamp with full British accent on "Milk Train." "Train" is the album's fun piece, with Daltrey sounding like an actor strutting upon the stage and having a good old time.

OTHER NEW RELEASES include:

"Ruby Starr and Grey Ghost" (Capitol). Ms. Starr gained national recognition through tours with Black Oak Arkansas and featured screamer on BOA's hit remake of "Jim Dandy." Now she is backed by her own band, which writes all the material on its debut album.

With her powerful voice and preference for tinges of soul and southern rock, Ms. Starr has the potential to become an exceptional blues/rock singer in the tradition of Bobbie Bramlett and Janis Joplin.

Grey Ghost seems to be a strong band, with the organ and guitar work particularly notable. The band's songs are good to excellent from "Everything Comes and Goes" on the first side to all of the second side. In particular, "Fork in the Road" is a good bet to become a hit because of a certain haunting quality to its melody.

RUBY STARR and Grey Ghost will be at the Aragon in Chicago tonight, along with the recently rejuvenated Steppenwolf. Steppenwolf's second "comeback" album, "Hour of the Wolf" (Epic), hardly justifies the band's rebirth, however. Throughout, its lyrical and musical images are stale and even Tom Scott's sax on two songs seems wasted. Only the rocker, "Someone Told a Lie," with its many echoes of the band's past, elicits a positive response.

"Sneakin' Sally through the Alley" by Robert Palmer (Island). Palmer is a Britisher (former Vinegar Joe member) who has been greatly influenced by Stevie Wonder. This rhythm and blues effort has a good cover and opens with three fine songs strung together — "Sailing Shoes," "Hey Julia" and the title song. The New Orleans and Carribbean rhythms seem to fit the material well and infect liveliness.

THE REST OF THE album lacks the same musical tightness and Palmer's songwriting, which predominates, lacks the discipline to make it interesting. The promise is there, though, for a new white r&b star to emerge sometime soon.

"The Troggs" (Pye). The new Trogg version of "Wild Thing" is reggae style, but it's not the best of this lewd, vulgar album in the true Trogg tradition. The band's "Summertime" is great, with lead singer Reg Presley's breathy vocals and strategic stutter making pauses sound dirty. As in the past, the Troggs deflate some rock standards by reducing them to absurd levels. The Beach Boys' "Good Vibrations" and the Everlys' "Peggy Sue" get the treatment this time. This is punk rock at its best.

"HOW DO YOU KNOW IT'S OLD?"
by HAROLD L. PETERSON

Charles Scribner's Sons, $12.50

So you bought a primitive, old pie safe which the auctioneer described as "just about as Early American as you can get" — and sure enough, the wood is riddled with worm holes and the punched tin sides are rusted from standing in some dark cellar, probably for a hundred years, at least.

But as Harold L. Peterson, author of "How Do You Know It's Old?" can tell you, worm holes can be simulated with a drill (although they will be straight and not twisted and turned as they would be from the work of real antique worms), rust can be added in a hurry with acid, and metal latches and hinges can be tarnished with sulphur.

PETERSON, CHIEF curactor of the National Park Service, is responsible for authentication of the furnishings and accessories for more than 200 museums and 64 historical buildings. He is an authority on old arms and armor and has written a number of books on the subject, along with "Americans at Home," a pictorial source book of American domestic interiors.

His latest book, "How Do You Kow It's Old?", gets down to the nitty-gritty of antiques fakery. But the author does it with humor, style and layman's language, making the book a valuable addition to any serious collector's library.

And, as the author points out, you don't need a lot of sophisticated equipment. You can do it with a magnifying glass, a strong light source such as a Tensor lamp and a simple ultraviolet ray light. (The last to detect new paint on ceramics or tin, or to decide whether glass is of fine lead composition or cheaper soda ash.) Along with these simple mechanical helps, he stresses, one must use his eye, his memory and, of course, his knowledge. (Knowledge which can be gained in books such as this one under review.)

NOW, ADMITTEDLY, most of us are not concerned with documenting a 1776 Paul Revere silver mug or an ancient Chinese bronze bell, for these don't turn up at your average garage sale or flea market. Many of the antiques referred to in this book are of museum caliber, naturally, considering the author's profession. However, the methods he describes in detecting fakes and reproductions can be extended to almost any area of collecting, whether it be the ancient or the more popular and affordable "new" antiques.

His chapter on ceramics, glass, scrimshaw, horn and stone might even save you a bad purchase in these days of large scale production of "antiques" for the Bicentennial market.

AS PETERSON states in the foreward, "The student of antiques who says he has never been fooled just doesn't know it yet, but the cost of buying a fake can be considered tuition, provided you learn by the experience."

There are other ways to reduce the cost of "tuition," and this book is one of them. I highly recommend this articulate, well-illustrated handbook, if you are really serious about spotting fakes and phonies in the antiques world.

"LOOKING FOR MR. GOODBAR"

by JUDITH ROSSNER

Simon and Schuster, $7.95

Terry Dunn, a young single teacher trying to make her way alone in Manhattan, goes into a local bar, picks up a complete stranger and takes him home.

After sex, she asks him to leave, he becomes angry and unruly, pulls out a knife and murders her.

But a nice girl never goes to a bar and takes home a stranger, does she? What else could one expect?

In Judith Rossner's newest novel, "Looking for Mr. Goodbar," the ending is told first. But don't be fooled.

The real significance of this book, the gut level writing that put "Goodbar" immediately on the best-seller list and made an overnight celebrity of Ms. Rossner, is the detailed character analysis of Miss Dunn leading up to that final, fatal New Year's Eve.

IN THIS PARTICULAR situation it's not important who did the murdering but why it happened at all.

Rod Steiger in 'Hennessy'

Well-made movie thriller

by DAVID DUGAS
(A review)

Thrillers that don't rely on earthquakes, burning office buildings or malevolent fish are hard to come by these days. So it is nice to note an exceptionally well-made thriller in "Hennessy," which has Rod Steiger set on blowing up the British Royal Family during the Queen's annual opening of Parliament.

He doesn't succeed, you know, any more than Edward Fox did in his fictional assassination attempt on President de Gaulle in "Day of the Jackal." The fun is in seeing how close he gets.

Steiger, as Hennessy, is a demolition expert in Belfast, a man who has opted out of the Irish Republican Army and violence until his wife and daughter fall innocent victims in one of the street battles that plague that religiously divided city.

SEEKING THE ultimate revenge, he goes to London bent on making himself a human bomb that will explode in the House of Lords as Queen Elizabeth reads her speech to the assembled lords and members of Parliament.

To get through the tight security, he first invades the home of an M.P., ties the fellow up and then transforms himself into a look-alike, convincing enough to take his place a few yards from the royal throne.

Out to stop him are not only the sleuths of Scotland Yard but his former IRA friends from Belfast, who reason such an outrage "would set our cause back 50 years."

"Day of the Jackal" managed more suspense. But "Hennessy," directed by Britain's Don Sharp, nevertheless is a first-class drama which avoids exploiting its subject matter. Gore is minimal and the violence subdued.

The performances are all fine, including Steiger, Lee Remick as a friend's widow who gives him a bed in London, and a bearded Richard Johnson as the Scotland Yard inspector out to stop him.

OTHERS IN THE cast include Trevor Howard as a Scotland Yard commander and Eric Porter and Peter Egan among the IRA men. They are excellent, as is the wonderfully crisp photography by Ernest Steward that catches the streets of Belfast and London as well as it does the halls of Parliament, parts of which were recreated to perfection at London's Pinewood studios.

What is downright amazing is the film's climax, which intercuts color documentary footage of the Queen and royal family at an actual opening of Parliament.

It is so expertly worked into the movie that "Hennessy" justifiably begins with a note assuring that the royal family did not actually participate in making the movie. You'd swear they did.

In fact, a considerable controversy has been generated in Britain both by the film's use of that footage and by a major theater chain's refusal to distribute "Hennessy" because of it.

Actor Johnson, incidentally, also contributed the original story on which the film is based.

"Hennessy," is an American International picture, rated PG.

TOM VENTRISS and Ed Sauer match wits in "The Sunshine Boys," a rollicking, derisive comedy about two ex-vaudeville partners who never were able to get along. The Neil Simon play is currently being staged at Country Club Comedy Theatre in Mount Prospect.

A strong Simon at Candlelight

by GENIE CAMPBELL
(A review)

It isn't "Carousel" or "My Fair Lady" or any one of the wholesome, family shows Candlelight Dinner Playhouse in Summit usually features.

Nor is it Neil Simon's usual light attempts at sexy comedy.

"Gingerbread Lady" is the kind of meaty comedy-drama that sends people home with more than a final taste of dessert in their mouth. It shows off the celebrated playwright's flair for original wit but also exposes a serious content.

"Gingerbread Lady" can be laughed at but not laughed off, particularly when it is as well done as the Candlelight production with Janis Paige in the dominant female lead highlighted by supporting actors Eddie Jones and Betsy von Furstenberg.

MISS PAIGE plays Evy, an exnightclub singer who has just returned from taking "the cure" at a private sanitarium.

She is an alcoholic and, though her outward exhuberance at first suggests a happy-go-lucky individual, she is inside a broken, lonely woman. But Evy intends to stay sober, if not for her own well-being, for the sake of her 17-year-old daughter played by Rebecca Balding.

Ms. Balding projects the wide-eyed innocence of a teenager concerned about her homework and at the same time acts as guardian to a drunk of a mother who also has a habit of sleeping around. She plays the role as Simon wrote it, event though it's a bit overdone. Most teenagers could not cope as well as Rebecca does as Polly.

EDDIE JONES is great as a two-bit porno actor and good friend to Evy. And Betsy von Furstenberg is quite striking as Toby, an aging beauty queen who thinks her face is all she has to offer mankind. she is obsessed with retaining, at all costs, her youth and glow.

The climax of the play comes in the second act when Toby and Jimmy unload their own personal problems, one broken marriage, one career mishap on a shaky Evy, who only knows one way to solve all problems. That's with a bottle.

It is an emotionally highly charged scene with plenty of raw language, necessary to the situation and character of Evy. Miss Paige excels in this scene.

Unfortunately, there is little left to be said and a whole act to go. The remainder of the play unwinds slowly. But take heart. As in all his plays, Simon is able to work wonders. The ending is a happy-ever-after one.

ALSO IN THE show are Stephen Sodaro as the delivery boy Manuel and James C. Hamilton as Lou Tanner, Evy's former lover.

The set design by William B. Fosser is fine except the fireplace is distracting to theatergoers on one side.

Gretchen Wyler is currently replacing Miss Paige who is filming a television pilot through Sunday.

Sculptor's fabulous fakes

by BARBRO LARSEN

Attending a Duane Hanson exhibition is a little like meeting old acquaintances and finding they are only ghosts.

The three-dimensional trompe l'oeil effect of the American artist's fiberglass human sculptures is far more natural than Madame Tussaud's famed waxworks in London and has startled museum-goers around the world.

A representative exhibition of his work caused considerable confusion recently at the Louisiana, Denmark's famed modern art museum in Copenhagen, which is a work of art in itself.

Visitors frequently tried to talk to the artfully located figures or bumped into them and started to say "I'm sorry" before realizing they were dummies.

It caused embarrassment and laughter when visitors tried to talk to a sculpture of a secretary placed in the museum before the actual exhibition took place.

"SHE WAS TAKING down notes or something and I thought she was the museum hostess," said one blushing man.

A worker's hand clutching a beer can, a scarred nose and tired wrinkles under a woman's eyes all are proof of Hanson's ability to make statues that you feel you must touch to be sure whether they are real.

Hanson, born in Alexandria, Minn., and now living in Florida, has concentrated on the everyway American. Most U.S. citizens would recognize the housewife with her shopping cart, the Bowery drunk or the fat, sunbathing woman, cheeks and thighs reddened by the sun and hands reaching for potato chips.

"He notices a missing button, a slip showing or a varicose vein, to single out a certain person from an anonymous mass where everybody so easily gets lost," a West German art critic said.

HANSON USES friends and acquaintances as models for what he calls the "negative."

This means covering a human model with plaster, which later is filled with a mixture of polyester, resin, talcum and fiberglass.

"This is the positive. I take that out of the negative and put all the parts together before painting them with three coats of oil paint," Hanson explained.

Finally the figure is clothed, gets a wig and other necessary accessories.

Hanson, now in his late 40s, only started making his human statues in 1967. Before that he taught at art schools in the United States and West Germany. Shortly after moving to Florida in 1973, he received the Chicago Art Institute's Blair Award for a sculpture called "Woman Derelict."

When Hanson first started his experiments with naturalistic sculpturing, he pictured political or social disasters like war, race conflicts or accidents. Later he began introducing types — athletes, housewives, tourists, show girls.

"I want to picture a society full of contradictions and different type-groups," Hanson says in a statement explaining his work.

Williamson in 'Rex'

Nicol Williamson will return to Broadway for the first time in five years to play the role of King Henry VIII in the new Richard Rodgers-Sheldon Harnick musical "Rex," which is scheduled to go into rehearsal next January.

Williamson last appeared on Broadway in 1969 with a modern dress interpretation of "Hamlet." (UPI)

'Town' another hit for Schisgal

If at first you weren't aware of the playwright, halfway through the first act I'm sure you'd recognize the technique and style of "ALL OVER TOWN" as belonging to MURRAY SCHISGAL. His new comedy farce has the same cunning sarcasm, exaggerated movements and eccentric characters that set off his hit "Luv."

Only this time there is more of everything and Schisgal's bizzare lineup indeed mirrors fads and passions of society.

"Luv" made a mockery of marriage and divorce. In "All Over Town" Schisgal includes an unfaithful wife for good measure. He also adds a guru leaving for Tibet, a psychiatrist into Buddhism, a Greek shoemaker, a gay businessman, a nearsighted burglar, a conservative Army Colonel and a ding-a-ling of a social worker who doles out public aid.

Altogether, there are 18 characters of diverse ethnic and social backgrounds and, among all of them, almost every madness and city ill is portrayed.

The outcome is extremely hilarious, though Schisgal gets so involved he has trouble getting out. The extreme silliness wears thin before the final curtain goes down. But when you weave in as many subjects and characters as Schisgal does for "All Over Town" there is no way of bowing out gracefully.

The play revolves around a case of mistaken identity. A psychiatrist, THOMAS TONER, has agreed to analyze a welfare client, Chip Zien, who's managed to father nine illegitimate children by five different women. How does he do it? He simply tells them, "I'm in love and as soon as I can scrape some cash together we'll get married."

Night out
by Genie Campbell

When Lewis, a delivery man played by the star of the show, RON O'NEAL (of "Superfly" fame) arrives at the doctor's fashionable Manhattan apartment, he is mistaken for the ardent welfare client, Louie. (He indeeed looks far more seductive.) Lewis quickly moves in to make the most of the attention the family wants to lavish upon him.

It's hard to pick out individual performances because the entire cast is good. And with the pace of this show and the number of doors out of which the characters come shooting, almost necessary for a successful farce, it would seem a difficult production.

Maybe that's why DUSTIN HOFFMAN was anxious to tackle "All Over Town" as his first directing assignment. He's set a fine precedence for himself.

The show played on Broadway this season until July 20, when the entire cast embarked on a 14-city tour that includes this present engagement in Chicago. "All Over Town" is playing at the Shubert Theatre through Sept. 13.

The current show in the TOP OF THE TOWERS of ARLINGTON PARK HILTON falls flat. Young female vocalist BOBBI JORDON sings without any real life to her delivery. She fails to develop rapport with the audience and comedian SAMMY SHORR, though he tries his hardest, just can't come across with enough bright humor.

He does do a clever impersonation of a race horse, appropriate for the room, and manages some good-natured digs at Hilton's redecorating job . . . "Now it's like a used car lot for used furniture." Many of his jokes, however, are just too long and outmoded. The laughs are out of respect for Sammy himself, not for his humor.

Bobbi Jordon

Returning to the Top of the Towers Sept. 9 is JULIE WILSON.

The first full-scale professional American production of "EDWARD II," staged by the CITY CENTER ACTING COMPANY, is Ravinia Festival's second presentation of its three-week theater season. "Edward II" opens Tuesday and will be performed nightly through Sept. 7.

Christopher Marlowe's powerful drama directed by Ellis Rabb, was written in 1592 and depicts the clash of wills between Edward, a weak, self-indulgent king, and his nobles.

The title role is enacted by NORMAN SNOW, with MARY-JOAN NEGRO as his tortured queen, SAM TSOUTSOUVAS as his arch enemy and PETER DVORSKY as the friend he will not renounce.

The Company's third play at Ravinia will be George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man." It will be performed Sept. 9-14.

Footlighter troupe sets season's plays, auditions

Next week the Des Plaines Footlighters launches its 13th season of plays. This young people's theater group was organized by the Des Plaines Park District and is the only thespian troupe of its kind in the area.

Opening the 1975-76 season is Agatha Christie's mystery "Ten Little Indians." Auditions are set for Sept. 6 and 7, with performances Nov. 21, 22 and 23.

The second play, opening next February, is the Footlighters' annual "show biz buffet," better known as the play festival. "Festival '76" brings comedy, drama, farce and mystery together for an evening's entertainment. Tryouts are scheduled for Dec. 6-7. The show goes on stage Feb. 20-22, 1976.

THE SEASON WILL conclude with "Peter Pan" by J. M. Barrie. As in the past, all children auditioning for this final show of the season will be cast. Tryouts will be held March 6-7; play dates are May 21, 22 and 23.

Ken L. Johnson begins his sixth year with the Footlighters as resident director and Grace Coash, professional radio and recording personality, continues as resident musical director and vocal coach. Joan Wilm is chairman of the Parents Boosters; Mrs. Diane Johnson is season ticket chairman.

Auditions for the three productions this season are open to area students from first grade through seniors in high school. Those interested should call the park district office, 296-6106. Anyone willing to help the Parents Boosters can call Mrs. Wilm, 299-6418.

Carol Lynley advises on single parenthood

by GAY PAULEY

Success in show business came easier for Carol Lynley than success as a parent without a partner.

"I've never had any hangups about being a single parent," said Miss Lynley, the blonde beauty who is back on Broadway and busy with movies. "But I don't recommend it. It is just a fact of life. You have to make it come out right."

Miss Lynley, 33, already was succeeding as a model and actress (she made her stage debut at 12) when she married at 18. Within three weeks she was pregnant. "It was a classic teenage mistake," the actress said of the marriage which ended shortly in a divorce.

JILL VICTORIA was born when Miss Lynley was 19 and has grown into a lovely dark-haired teen.

"Surely, I read Dr. Spock," said the actress. "I had never been around children . . . never even held a baby. A nurse in the hospital taught me how to change a diaper."

The brief marriage was to a Hollywood publicist and Jill regularly spends some time with her father. "I've always felt it good for her to know him," said her mother.

Jill is enrolled in private school in California, which was home until the actress recently returned to live in New York. The child is summering with friends at Cape Cod while her mother stars in "Absurd Person Singular," a comedy on Broadway.

"There are six million of us out there," said Miss Lynley of those parents without partners, singles through divorce, separation or death. Undoubtedly they have problems that don't affect two people rearing children.

"MAKING MONEY made it easier for me," said Miss Lynley. "I could send my daughter to private school. Private schools were just more adaptable for my lifestyle."

She wondered how a lot of single parents manage, especially where finding and being able to pay for reliable help are factors.

"I wish the goverrment would provide day care centers," she said. "Almost everybody has them in Europe. Considering our numbers as single parents, we're penalized.

"Many a time I'd felt easier if I had just known where I could drop Jill off if a maid of housekeeper didn't show up. I've had some nightmares."

"Fortunately, she is a healthy child. The hives once, and a couple of flus, and that's about all."

THE ACTRESSES, whose own parents were separated, grew up in the New York area and with her grandparents in Winthrop, Mass.

She decided to be a dancer when as a little girl someone taught her a Scottish jig. There was the problem of paying for dancing lessons, but her mother, working as a waitress, managed to send her to ballet school. Her father has since died.

Carol Lynley's professional career began with the ballet school's regular televised talent show when a director spotted the face with the classic bone structure and said she should model.

"I was 10," said Miss Lynley. "I haven't stopped since."

(United Press International)

PAINTING IS Carol Lynley's hobby and her apartment walls are decorated with many of her efforts. Always keeping her company while she paints is Miss Lynley's West Highland Terrier named Mary.

HERMAN THE HERMIT clown will take his children's radio program, heard every Sunday 8:30 to 10 a.m. on station WWMM-FM, at Randhurst mall Saturday from 2 to 3:30 p.m. The program, "Herman the Hermit Reads the Funnies," will have some of the children doing the reading for prizes. Money donated by the audience during taping will be given by Herman to the Muscular Dystrophy Telethon on WSNS-TV Labor Day morning.

Hallmark Chorus seeks singers

Hoffman Hallmark Chorus is inviting men and women who enjoy singing to join the group as it starts rehearsals for the seventh winter concert scheduled in January, 1976. This concert will be a musical attraction at the Hoffman Estates celebration of the Bicentennial.

The chorus, directed by June Cowin, rehearses Wednesday evenings from 8 to 10:30, beginning Sept. 3, at Helen Keller Junior High, 820 Bode Road, Hoffman Estates.

A membership 'bash' is also planned, for Friday, Sept. 12, from 8 to 10 p.m. at Lincoln Federal Savings, Higgins Road west of Golf Road. Anyone interested in the chorus is welcome to a rehearsal or the party.

Membership is open to men and women in Arlington Heights, Bloomingdale, Glendale Heights, Hanover Park, Hoffman Estates, Roselle, Schaumburg and Streamwood.

The music includes classical, show tunes, folk music, religious and novelty tunes.

Vocalists are also encouraged to attend a rehearsal. No auditions are required.

der. Rossner, who has written three other novels including "Life of an Old Maid," is able to capture the insecurities and temptations of a young woman trying to fulfill both her own expectations and those of society.

Terry Dunn is no swinger on the prowl. She's neither pretty nor plain, just a confused woman who doesn't seem to fit in anywhere.

Her parents have their own problems. Her one sister is safely married and a mother, the other gets by on beauty alone.

TERRY'S BOYFRIEND is a milk toast who hangs around waiting for her to give in and marry him. For Terry it would mean instant security. Instead, she finds herself scouting the neighborhood bars, picking up an assortment of men far beneath her in intelligence and class.

Rossner's style of writing is somewhat remindful of Erica Jong whose "Fear of Flying," whether you were repulsed or uplifted by it, constitutes a realistic, honest account of one woman's feelings. Not enough female authors in the past have had the opportunity or nerve to let loose.

"Mr. Goodbar," howver, will even appeal to a wider audience because it is far less crass and reads more like a mystery novel, though the story is based on a true case.

Transit groups hit for not using minorities

Several suburban transit systems have been accused of "under-utilizing" minorities, the Regional Transportation Authority Board was told Thursday.

The federal Fair Employment Practices Commission notified RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky that it has investigated Chicago-area carriers, including the Chicago and North Western Ry. and the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN) and further inspections are being made. Both carriers appear to be below federal standards, the FEPC charged.

The FEPC said the RTA and the carriers are not in danger of losing federal money yet, and will not lose money unless remedial action is ignored. The FEPC asked the Milwaukee Road for updated figures, but indicated it also may not be in compliance.

ALL TRANSIT carriers have been required by the RTA to submit "equal opportunity employment" statements before qualifying for grants, and several board members were angered Thursday because they had not been told the FEPC was investigating the local carriers. Two Chicago board members asked to have their votes changed on grants to the carriers in question, but the issue was complicated because the votes were taken some time ago.

The RTA board Thursday approved grants to the Rock Island Line commuter operations and the Waukegan-North Chicago Transit Co. for operating deficits. The bus company grant was for fiscal year 1975.

Brian Cudahy, director of marketing and service planning for the RTA, told The Herald Thursday that community college bus routes promised for service by Labor Day will be delayed a few weeks.

The college routes were to be the first of a series of suburban improvements announced early this summer by Pikarsky. Cudahy said routes have been planned in some locations, but service to Oakton Community College is being held up because NORTRAN will not consider new service while it is receiving only partial funding from the RTA.

Cudahy said routes for Harper College are being studied, but the remote location is creating routing problems.

Federal panel proposes automatic embalm ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An "overwhelming majority" of funeral homes embalm corpses as a matter of course, often without family consent and even when embalming violates religious precepts, a Federal Trade Commission staff memo said Thursday.

The memo said rush embalming is done because it stimulates sales of fancy caskets and deters consumers from dealing with other funeral homes which may charge less.

The FTC memo supported proposed FTC rules to regulate the $2 billion funeral home industry, including a rule forbidding undertakers to pick up or embalm corpses without permission from the family.

"EMBALMING IS vital because the funeral industry makes its money from the sale of ornate caskets with silk linings, satin pillows and Beautyrest mattresses; burial clothes and shoes; and a variety of other goods and services, all of which depend upon open-casket viewing of the remains," the FTC memo said.

"Viewing, in turn depends upon embalming and cosmetology to make the remains appear lifelike and attractive.

"Emblaming is also important to a funeral director becase starting the process locks the consumer into dealing with the particular funeral home," the memo said.

"IT IS DIFFICULT enough for a consumer to order the body transported to another place because he is not satisfied with the terms offerd by the first funeral home; it is almost impossible if the first home has actually started work on the remains. . .

"Because embalming is such an essential part of lucrative undertaking, funeral directors have labored for decades to establish it as common practice. Today, the overwhelming majority perform embalming as a matter of course, often without even asking the family whether embalming is desired."

The memo cited instructions issued in 1973 by a Forest Hills, N.Y., funeral home to illustrate that embalming is done even in violation of religious principle. The instructions ordered employes to embalm even the bodies of orthodox Jews, whose religion prohibits embalming.

The FTC memo said embalming usually adds $50 to $200 to the cost of funeral services.

Schedule changes abound for new fall TV programs

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBS and NBC are playing a game called scrambled schedules with some of the new shows coming up this fall.

The game began when the networks named the date for the opening week of the fall season — Sept. 8. As soon as they announced their fall schedules they were ready to start juggling.

The scheduling sleight of hand goes like this. "Beacon Hill" belongs in the CBS 9-10 slot on Tuesday nights. It should have premiered Sept. 9.

Instead it bowed in two weeks ahead of schedule and on a Monday — Aug. 25.

"BIG EDDY" is in the midst of similar schedule shenanigans. It should have premiered on CBS Friday, Sept. 12, at 7 p.m. Instead it bowed in Saturday, Aug. 23 at 7:30 p.m., and will have its second airing Saturday, Aug. 30, before settling in on Friday nights.

NBC plays differently. Its programs are making their debuts the week beginning Sept. 8, except for three Thursday night entries. "The Montefuscos," "Fay" and a special two-hour "Medical Story" will be on a week early on Sept. 4.

Confusing? Now to network vice presidents.

"The main purpose is to get them watched," said Lee Currlin, CBS Television Network vice president, programs, as if that explained it all.

He said that "Beacon Hill" and "Big Eddy" were the biggest question maks in the new season, because the former was a "new form" and the latter is up against the very strong "Sanford and Son."

"But you know we're all very competitive in this business," Currlin said. "We realized the other two networks would try to schedule competitively to blunt our position by putting on the best programs they could."

HE SAID CBS knew that no matter when "Beacon Hill" was premiered, "ABC would throw Elizabeth Montgomery as Lizzie Borden against it. But if CBS went to Monday night with "Beacon Hill," it would handcuff its archrival, NBC, because NBC was committed to Mondy night baseball.

It worked, according to the Nielson rating, which gave "Beacon Hill" 42 per cent of the audience. CBS estimates that means 30 million persons watched some part of "Beacon Hill."

NBC plays the game in simpler form, jumping the gun on starting dates and slipping pilots in at odd moments. Mike Weinblatt, executive vice president, explained for NBC;

"It's a judgment call. It's done on new shows more than anything. We want to introduce the show, give it a good sampling, a little surge forward."

The two half-hour shows, "The Montefuscos" and "Fay," on CBS and against "The Waltons" on CBS and need all the help they can get.

ABC isn't playing scrambled schedules this fall. That network wants to start the season later than Sept. 8, not earlier.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

New diet needed for spastic colon

I have what the doctors call spastic colon. They say you have to learn to live with it, but that is awful hard living. One doctor gave me Librax that helped some to stop some of the gas which I had so badly. I have some bleeding each morning and that worries me.

When I get up in the morning I hurt across my back above my waistline. The doctors say, "Well, be thankful it leaves you during the day."

My X-rays show only spastic colon. I was operated on in 1973 for hemorrhoids. Could this bleeding come from that?

I am really confused as to what to do and think there must be something better than just living with this condition. One of your columns said you could do something about it. I would appreciate any advice you can give me. I know several friends here with the same trouble who are also regular readers of your column. I'm not a coffee or tea drinker, maybe one cup a day.

Most people with spastic colon problems can help themselves by changing their diet and living pattern. A common cause of these difficulties is not enough bulk in the diet. The problem is then made worse by taking laxatives or enemas.

The colon needs to have enough bulk in the food residue to contract against. When the bulk is adequate the colon contracts regularly in a rhythmic fashion and does not go into spasm.

One of the best sources is cereal fiber or bran. I would recommend that you eat a bowl of cereal every morning, one of the whole wheat or bran cereals. Also drink two glasses of liquid, even if it is just warm water, after breakfast. You can use prunes too if you want, but don't neglect the fiber you need.

Also switch to whole wheat breads and use no white flour products. You can also use some leafy or bulky vegetables, salads are the best here.

YOU MAY STILL have gas and symptoms for three weeks on this diet. But, if you stick out the three weeks your colon will have made some adjustments, and you will be better off. Of course you should use no chemical laxatives during this period. One of the bulk expanders such as Metamucil can be used if necessary, or you can use a tap water enema every three days if you must, but try to get off that as soon as possible.

Gas formation comes from many causes, including intolerance to milk. You can check that out by eliminating milk and milk products for a while. And, how do you eat cereals without milk — you can eat them dry if you need to. The small shredded wheat biscuits dry are not bad. For older people, too many sweets sometimes overload the system's ability to absorb sugars and lead to symptoms similar to spastic colon with gas. If you used coffee or tea in any amount I would suggest stopping them.

Bleeding in your case is probably from your hemorrhoids. If it were more serious your doctors would have found it. But no one, absolutely no one, should ever fail to get a medical examination if they have any bleeding. Let the doctor decide if it is from your hemorrhoids or from something more serious that needs immediate attention.

9 schools plan sports shows

A Herald staff report

Nine Herald area high schools will be holding football scrimmages tonight and Saturday along with an array of other activities.

Putting on sports shows tonight will be Wheeling, Forest View, Hersey, Fremd and Wheeling. Playing on Saturday will be Arlington, Buffalo Grove, Palatine and Conant.

Not planning any formal scrimmage will be St. Viator, Prospect, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Maine West and Elk Grove.

The following are capsule reports on the weekend activities at each school:

AT ROLLING MEADOWS

Rolling Meadows High School will celebrate the opening of the 1975 football season with its 5th annual Purple and White Football Night tonight at 6 p.m. for the freshmen, 7 p.m. for sophs and jayvees and 8 p.m. for the varsity.

Admission is free and honorary coaches for the contest will be Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer and high school Principal Robert Hoese.

AT FOREST VIEW

Forest View will unveil its freshman and sophomore teams at 8 p.m. and 8:30 tonight preceded by the introduction of coaches, varsity players and a parent's clinic at 7 p.m.

AT HERSEY

Hersey hosts its intrasquad battles tonight with sophomore action beginning at 6 p.m. and varsity getting under way at 8 p.m. There will be a 50-cent charge for adults and 25 cents for children. The MSL North Division champions will hold the scrimmages on the Huskie field just east of the high school.

AT FREMD

Fremd head coach Joe Samojedny says tonight's varsity scrimmage will be "all competition against each other in head-to-head combat." Starting at 8 p.m., the varsity seniors and juniors will be matched up with 1 vs. 3 and 2 vs. 4 at each position so the coaches can decide on starting positions.

The evening will begin with a freshman scrimmage from 6-6:45. The sophomores will go at it from 7-7:45. At halftime of the varsity game, the cross country team will perform.

AT WHEELING

The Wheeling varsity football team under new head coach Jerry Clinnin will make its debut at 8 p.m. tonight, immediately following the sophomore and jayvee scrimmage at 7:30 p.m.

Admission is free to view the Wildcats who will work under a partially-controlled scrimmage the first half and operate under game conditions the second half.

AT ARLINGTON

The Arlington sophomore and varsity football squads will be on display Saturday morning beginning at 9 a.m. The sophomores will scrimmage for one-half hour before yielding to the varsity of head coach Chuck Haines at 9:30 a.m. Admission is free.

BILL GEEGAN, returning letterman from Rolling Meadows, stares down an onrushing teammate during grid practice at Northwestern.

Lions hope success continues

by MIKE KLEIN

Success ought to logically breed more success. That makes Jim Lyne smile. But it can also breed complacency and overconfidence. That puts Lyne on-guard.

"Every football coach has feelings of insecurity and fear," said Lyne whose fifth St. Viator Lions squad opens next Friday evening at Forest View.

"There are so many bad things which can happen to counteract all the good things you plan and work for. That's not to be a pessimist, but let's not kid ourselves."

Then Lyne shifts gears. Now, he speaks like a man whose Lions will seek their second straight East Suburban Catholic title and third in four seasons. Also, they desire a second straight IHSA playoffs position.

Picking up momentum, he sounds like the old Jim Lyne whose Lions have gone 30-7-2 in four seasons. The school record has grown to 81-33-4 over 13 campaigns.

"Last year, we were 9-2 and played

St. Viator's Jim Lyne

good football against every team we faced," said the almost 41-year-old Notre Dame graduate. "The year before, we were 7-2 and lost twice by one point.

"When you're playing that kind of football, people start to recognize that St. Viator has good football. This isn't 10 years ago when people would say, 'Where is St. Viator? What is it?' "

There are solid reasons for Viator's football success, says Lyne, citing exposure. "We've been fortunate to schedule people like Lane Tech, Evanston and Hersey. Then, we've been fortunate to win."

And successful football should again be the dominant trait at St. Viator where Lyne also places a high premium on making the game fun.

But the Lions no longer chase upsets. Teams are now chasing Viator. That makes for greater dedication.

"People watch you play football, get films and talk to coaches who've played you," Lyne said. "There's no way you can disguise your abilities. There's no way you can disguise your lack of ability."

The Lions are stocked with only remnants from the 1974 team which advanced to IHSA quarterfinals before losing to Willowbrook. No starting offensive players return.

But those valuable remnants include defensive end Scott Zettek (6-foot-5, 232 pounds), co-captain middle linebacker Mike Murray (6-1½, 170), defensive tackle Dan Yourg (6-0, 195) and cornerback Terry Frett (5-8½, 164).

All are seniors. Zettek must prove his early line reputation as one of Chicagoland's best football players. Zettek (1st team) and Frett (2nd team) were named on the Herald's All-Area squad last fall.

Three seniors will likely complement Frett in the secondary. They are safeties Nick Josten (5-9, 156) and Vince Hall (5-11, 156) plus cornerback Kevin Mulroy (5-9, 168).

Co-captain Murray will have his younger brother, Tom (6-0, 178, junior), at left linebacker with Larry Bruck (6-0, 165, senior) on the right side.

It should be an all-senior offensive backfield with co-captain quarterback Jim Thompson (6-0, 169), tailback Jack Gracheck (5-10, 163), fullback

Pont wants grid team to be 'strong up middle' for successful season

by ED SAINSBURY

EVANSTON (UPI) — John Pont wants his 1975 Northwestern football team to adopt a baseball term as a springboard to success.

He wants it "strong up the middle."

Pont believes he can follow this pattern because of the return of two players who weren't available at all a year ago, Paul Maly at middle guard and Pete Shaw at safety.

"The best thing that happened during our spring practice," he said, "was the return of Maly and Shaw. If you can control the center of the line, your defense is in good shape. The first thing to control the center is to have a strong nose guard who can't be blocked, and that's Maly.

"Then you want a strong safety, and that's Shaw. He's got 4.5 speed and he's a strong tackler. That gives him about 9.6 speed for the 100 which means he can cover both sidelines, so these two will help tremendously."

Return of Maly and Shaw enables Pont to plan on starting lettermen at 10 or the 11 defensive positions, and while he wasn't blowing any bugles in salute to what his probable defensive success would be, he wasn't discouraged either.

"Our defensive backfield should be strong," he said. "All of them are good size, over six feet in height and close to 200 in weight, and all have good speed. so they should be able to cover those big wide receivers and not be outmuscled for the ball."

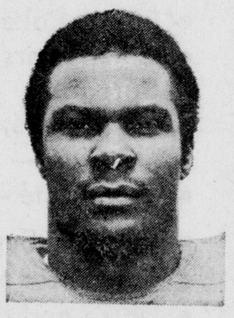

Offensively, Pont discounted the problem of replacing Mitch Anderson at quarterback. Randy Dean, a letterman, probably will get the job, although Kim Girkins will see some action. Dean, Pont said, has a quality to make up for any deficiencies he might have in throwing the ball or running the offense.

"When he gets in the huddle," Pont said, "there's no question about what he's doing. The players know he's right. He's a leader. He's got leadership, and this team will play for him."

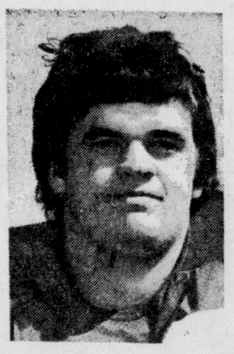

The Wildcat offense, explosive for the past two years, might be even better this year. Pont has three returning running backs with good reputations, Jim Pooler, Rich Boothe and Greg Boykin, who had to lay out with an injury last year.

"We've changed the concept of our offense," he said. "With three backs

Will Saxons keep getting better?

by ART MUGALIAN

"One thing that Schaumburg has been noted for is our steady improvement," said Saxon football coach Bob Ferguson, after his Mid-Suburban League champions went through their practice paces Tuesday in preparation for the 1975 season.

"We always get better as the season progresses."

Ferguson's squads have been getting better with every game of every season since the young head coach took over the reins in 1970, climaxing last November when the Saxons toppled Hersey, 7-6, in the final MSL Super Bowl.

It's a tough act to follow but you can be sure Ferguson and his Saxons won't stand still. The coach is quietly optimistic about the new season. With weekly improvement, he figures, the Saxons could find themselves in their second straight IHSA playoff.

"I think that this year's team can be better than last year," said Ferguson, who's squad posted an 8-2 mark in 1974. "Offensively, we're better right now. Our goal is to score 28 points per game — 28 to 30 points."

Four touchdowns a game is certainly possible with Russ Zonca, last year's league MVP, directing Schaumburg's wishbone option running attack. Junior halfback Steve Knudson and senior speedster Scott Mielke will be joined by fullback Mike Christy, another junior, to give the Saxons their fastest backfield ever.

Christy, though, will be slowed by a shoulder separation suffered in practice. His slot at fullback will be filled by Mark Godinez.

"Even if Christy's ready for the first game," Ferguson cautioned, "there's no way I'll jeopardize him. He's too valuable."

Christy is one of six or seven Saxons who will be expected to play both offense and defense. Until Christy is ready, Mike Kiley will take over at a linebacker spot.

Two key returnees on defense will be linebackers Scott Scholz and Gary Bolger, who will each see double-duty in the offensive line. The remainder of the defense will consist of newcomers.

"Defensively, we feel we have a lot of good athletes," said Ferguson, "but they are yet to be proven. They're green. But potentially, they're as good or better than last year's team."

Rookies Mike Orlowicz, Steve Skipworth, Scott Timcoe, and Kiley will have to perform well to make the Saxon defense tick. Mielke will return to the defensive backfield where he played as a sophomore, to be joined by Bob Connell, Steve Conrad, and maybe Brad Crawford.

Ferguson's Saxons have always stressed defense, but this year the coach wants scoring. And he'll probably get it.

"We have basically a running offense," said Ferguson. "Godinez and Knudson have quickness, good speed. They aren't awfully big but they're fast."

Knudson, Mielke, and Christy are veterans of the Saxon track team — they can burn it. And Mielke and Christy have good size to go with their speed and varsity experience.

Perhaps the most explosive runner in the Schaumburg backfield is quarterback Zonca, a 5-foot-11, 195-pounder who likes to keep the ball on the Texas-style option series. Zonca was one of the league's top rushers in 1974.

"We also think our passing game will be much improved this year," Ferguson noted. "Of course, Zonca completed 50 per cent of his passes in 1974."

Zonca's prime targets will be Bill Fairbanks, Crawford, and Orlowicz, a 6-3 junior.

"We'll be competitive," Ferguson assured, as his Saxons continued to get ready for their South Division title defense.

Don't doubt him.

Paddock Tennis tournament begins Saturday

Get your backhand ready.

And start working on that overhead smash.

The Paddock Tennis Tournament begins Saturday bright and early in the morning at six local courts with play in 20 divisions, including a couple of new ones. When the tourney ends with semis and finals on Labor Day, 62 trophies will have been awarded.

The 15th annual Paddock classic, co-sponsored by Paddock Publications and the Arlington Tennis Club, will once again showcase the net talents of more than 1,000 players from the area — hackers from the age of six to 60.

"This week has been hectic," said tourney director Mel Timmons, "but it'll get better. We've got about 1,050 entrants — we just can't handle any more of them. In some divisions we had to have a cut-off."

Timmons has the help of more than two dozen volunteers from the Arlington Tennis Club.

"I have to thank the personnel from the club," said the director. "From A to Z — from Dick Adashek to Karen Zmrhal and all of them in between. They've all volunteered to be at different places at different times. We're ready to get this thing on the road. We've got the courts and we're hoping for good weather."

Singles play in six divisions will begin Saturday at 9 a.m. at six local courts. Boys 15-and-under will be at Wheeling High School. Boys 16-18 will be played at Harper College's courts. Girls 15-and-under will be at Rolling Meadows High and girls 16-18 will be at Arlington High and women's open singles at Prospect High.

Doubles in each of those categories will be played at the same courts at 1 p.m.

The eight remaining divisions will be played as follows: Junior Vets Men's singles (35-and-over) at Arlington High at 10 a.m. Junior Vets Women's singles at Prospect at 10 a.m. Vets Men's singles (45-and-over) at Arlington at noon. Junior Vets Men's doubles at Arlington at 1 p.m. Junior Vets Women's doubles at Prospect at 1 p.m. Vets Men's doubles at Arlington at 1 p.m. Vets Women's doubles at Prospect at 2 p.m. Senior Men's doubles (50-and-over) at Arlington at 2 p.m.

All players are urged to report to the site at the time indicated.

And meanwhile, more than 1,000 area players will be looking for an opportunity to polish up their groundstrokes and practice their serve.

There isn't much time left.

Boston Bruins, Garden sold

Three brothers from Buffalo, N. Y., bought the National Hockey League Boston Bruins and their Boston Garden home Thursday, then immediately turned their attention to keeping Bobby Orr a Bruin.

Sportssystems Corporation, headed by brothers Jeremy, Max and Dr. Lawrence Jacobs, purchased the Bruins and their Garden for a reported $10 million from Storer Broadcasting Company.

They now must entice NHL All-Star defenseman Orr to remain with the Bruins rather than jump to the Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association. Orr has been offered a WHA contract reportedly worth $6.5 million.

In another franchise move, the American Basketball Association Memphis Sounds, bankrupt longer than anyone can remember, will become the Baltimore Hustlers.

OTHER SPORTS DEVELOPMENTS:

First round winners in U. S. Open Tennis Championships at Forest Hills included Jimmy Connors, Ilie Nastase, Bjorn Borg, Raul Ramirez, Guillermo Vilas, Rod Laver and Manual Orantes plus Chris Evert, Evonne Goolagong Cawley, Margaret Court, Francoise Durr, Dianne Fromholtz and Nancy Richey Gunter. Sisters Sue and Sandy Stap, both of Deerfield, Ill., were eliminated.

The University of Alabama lawsuit challenging new NCAA player limits for football has been moved from state to federal court in Tuscaloosa, Ala., at the NCAA's request. Auburn University has been added as a palintiff.

CHICAGO HIGHLIGHTS:

The Bears placed five-year veteran and starting center Rich Coady on waivers. He played 14 games each season from 1970 through 1973 but was hampered last year by the shoulder injury which eventually caused his dismissal.

Northwestern University split end Steve Bobowski, who prepped at St. Viator, underwent surgery for a broken jaw Thursday and will be lost between two and four weeks. The jaw was broken in practice yesterday.

The Winds signed former Bears' guard Tom Forrest, 23, who spent his rookie season last year with Abe Gibron on the Bears.

Ron Haigler, 6-foot-8 fourth round draft pick from Pennsylvania, was signed by the Bulls to an undisclosed contract. He's a three-time All Ivy League selection.

First baseman Mike Squires from Class AA Knoxville and pitcher Chris Knapp from Class A Appleton have been called up by the White Sox.

The Cubs announced five roster additions including relief pitcher Buddy Schultz, shortstop Dave Rosello and outfielder Jim Tyrone from Wichita. Pitchers Ken Crosby and Donnie Moore advance from Midland.

The Philadelphia Eagles defeated the Cincinnati Bengals, 30-20, in Thursday evening's only NFL preseason game.

Cuellar beats White Sox, 2-1

Elrod Hendricks and Don Baylor singled across the runs to support the five-hit pitching of 13-game winner Mike Cuellar as the Baltimore Orioles beat the White Sox, 2-1, Thursday night.

Cuellar, 13-10, pitched the Orioles to within 6½ games of idle Boston in the American League's Eastern division with his 16th complete game.

Wilbur Wood, 13-18, was the victim of singles by Bob Grich, Paul Blair and Hendricks in the second inning. After Ken Singleton walked and was sacrificed to second base in the fifth inning, Baylor's single brought him home.

Cuellar got the benefit of four double plays. He had a shutout until two out in the ninth when Pat Kelly tripled and Orta hit his third single of the game.

Bears should trade for new QB

Fan's forum

Us Bear fans have been watching with interest this year as a new head coach wrestles with the so-called quarterback problem, a dilemma which has perplexed a couple of coaches before Jack Pardee. Is it going to be Bobby Douglass or Gary Huff? Or maybe the young newcomer, Avellini? I guess it's a tough problem for a coach when he really doesn't have a choice. I mean, who would want to have to pick between those three quarterbacks?

Granted, Douglass is a super athlete with all the so-called tools, but he can't quarterback a pro club worth a hill of beans. And Huff has never been able to do much of anything, either. Avellini is obviously too young and inexperienced to take over the reins of a NFL team.

So why don't the Bears do what any other respectable team would do in their position — trade for an established pro quarterback? What are they afraid of?

The most important thing for a pro offense is a good, reliable, steady quarterback. The Bears should have one.

3 CHEERS FOR BILL

Fans Forum:

It's been a bad year for the Cubs, and their fans certainly don't have much to cheer about — no 20-game winners or no-hitters. Probably nobody will even hit 20 homers. But one thing we should all be proud of is the hitting of third baseman Bill Madlock. If he wins the National League batting title (and even if he doesn't), Bill will give the Cub fans something to cheer about for this year and for many years in the future. He's a rising star of the majors. Three cheers for Bill Madlock!

WINDS IN DOLDRUMS

Dear fans forum:

I am afraid that it's true that I am on record as disapproving of the World Footbal League and the current Chicago entry, the Winds. After all, the league came into existence on a shoestring and it looked for all the world like they would go out the same way. But, lo and behold, the league still functions. True, the Chicago Fire burned themselves out as I predicted. But the league and the people who want to keep a team in this city have a little more tenacity than I figured. They've managed to stick to it and keep their heads above water.

All of which makes me realize that I might have been wrong in saying that the WFL and Chicago were doomed to destruction. I repeat, may have been wrong. The league could go under next week and I doubt if too many people would really care.

But anyway, what I'm really trying to say is that now that the league seems to have at least temporarily righted itself, the media has backed off and has refused to give the WFL (especially the Winds) any coverage. In some of the papers, you'd think the team didn't even exist.

I remember the way the Herald covered the Fire last year — with a flourish and big headlines. All of a sudden, it's almost like the WFL doesn't deserve any coverage at all. With Abe Gibron coaching them, I would expect some attention for this team which has survived all kinds of misfortune. What gives?

like these, a coach would be foolish not to have all of them in the game. So we plan to. I'm not planning a full house backfield, but one of them will be a flanker on one play and inside on the next. They'll change around, but they'll be there.

"So if anyone thinks we're going to play a ball control game, we are. Our offensive line is bigger than anything we've had, and we think it can be a surprise."

Northwestern doesn't play the favorite for the title chase, Ohio State, so he accepted 6-2 or possibly 5-3 as a record within reach of his Wildcats. A 6-2 mark might be high enough in the standings that Northwestern once again could go to a bowl.

With Pont's optimism, someone is going to have to rise up to beat them out of it.

Also hoping to be in Northwestern's plans are six Herald area players — Palatine's Jim Maycan, Rolling Meadows' Pat and Bill Geegan and Steve Breitbeil and St. Viator's Steve Bobowski. Maine West's Steve Zuccarini will be lost for the season because of knee problems.

Kelly McCormick dives into mom's old specialty

by IRA BERKOW

Kelly McCormick says that diving as something she had never really anted to get mixed up in. Some eople would ask her in the most ban- l manner, "Are you going to be a reat diver like your mother?"

This troubled Kelly's mother, Patri- ia McCormick, winner of two gold ıedals in each of the 1952 and 1956 lympics — the only diver ever to apture the "double-double," so she aid strict attention to being a mother nd not a former star.

Kelly, now 15, and her brother, Tim, ow 19, saw very few plaques and ·ophies in obtrusive display around ıe house. Mrs. McCormick was care- ıl to stash them away.

Also, Mrs. McCormick and her hus- and, Glen, chief Olympic swimming nd diving coach in 1956, avoided put- ing sports pressure on their children.

There were, though, discussions round their house in Los Alamitos, 'alif. They dealt with lessons of ports since both kids were athletic, 'elly being a fine gymnast and Tim a igh-school pole vaulter.

All of them were aware of the "stage" parents, those who spent each long day at poolside with their kids. And if there was an untoward ripple made, a medal not won, there would be scenes and tears and threats of withholding meals from the kids.

Enjoy, was one of the lessons the McCormicks tried to impress upon their children. And yet, if something is worth doing, they said, it's worth doing with solid effort.

Kelly knew her mother's story: Pat McCormick was raised with two siblings by a working mother, their father having left home. She had been discovered while diving for fun at a Los Alamitos pool and developed, at the relatively late age of 16, into an Olympic-class diver.

At 18 she failed to make the 1948 Olympic team by one 100th of a point. It was considered good form to show happiness to those friends who made the team; she didn't allow herself to cry until she was under the showers and no one could see the tears. She vowed then she would win Olympic gold medals.

In Melbourne, Australia, in 1956, on the day before the finals of platform diving — Pat McCormick's chance to win an unprecedented fourth gold medal — she was returning by bus to the Olympic Village and sick to her stomach. She was in fourth place. Chances of her realizing her dream to win a fourth and final time seemed slim.

Suddenly, eeerily, she felt as if someone had touched her arm and convincingly explained that winning was not the most important thing in life. And she felt soothed.

The next day she said she dived bet- ter than she knew how, and won. It was America's last gold medal in '56, and the one that in the newspaper tal- lies edged out the Russians for the overall top score in that Olympics.

She retired soon after, and felt lost. She was ill-prepared for anything but diving. She went back to college and earned a physical education degree.

After the medals and glory, she told her kids, there is nothing — unless you have something else. Pat McCormick insists that Kelly main- tain a "B" average in school.

Kelly, says Pat proudly, has such a competitive nature that if she gets a bad grade, she'll come home, lock herself in her room and stick there until she has a grasp on her work.

One day last summer Kelly an- nounced to her parents that she want- ed to begin diving seriously, that for a variety of reasons gymnastics no longer interested her as before.

Olympian Pat McCormick in 1956. Daughter Kelly's diving now with the AAU team.

She asked both parents to help her. They cautiously agreed. They feel that she has Olympic potential, and an outside chance for the U.S. team at Montreal in 1976.

In her first international competition recently, Kelly came in second in the high dive. She was with an AAU team sponsored by Sarah Coventry, Inc. (Amateurs, particularly those in the less glamorous sports like kids' diving, are dependent upon contributions' from business.)

Kelly is supple and dramatic as she pings off the diving board and into the air, her 5-4, 120-pound body convolving with a powerful grace. She then slices into the rippleless water. Emerging in star-spangled blue swimsuit she shakes her blond-streaked, short hair like a wet spaniel. One notices that her hazel eyes are wide but not ingenuous. Her mother says she has faced reality, and is able to deal with it.

Reality came in tragedy, the Sun- day before last Thanksgiving. Kelly and three friends were in a car on a highway returning from the beach. Somehow, the driver lost control and crossed six lanes. Two of Kelly's friends were killed in the crash. Kel- ly's head went through the windshield. She was on the critical list for three days.

There are now scars, light but per- ceptible, on her face, her knees, her

Proper fit's crucial for bike enjoyment

(One in a series)

by RICHARD BALLANTINE

Getting the most out of your bike requires careful fitting, e.g., placement of handlebars, seat and controls.

The standard formulas for this process are the result of consid- erable work and study by genuine experts and will probably work the best. After you have finished setting your bike up "according to the book" the resulting position may feel a bit odd.

Give yourself at least 50 miles to get used to the new arrange- ment before making alterations. You may find the"odd" position considerably more efficient and less fatiguing than a "comfort- able" position.

Frame size is measured from the seat lug to the center of the bottom bracket. There are two methods of calculating the proper size:

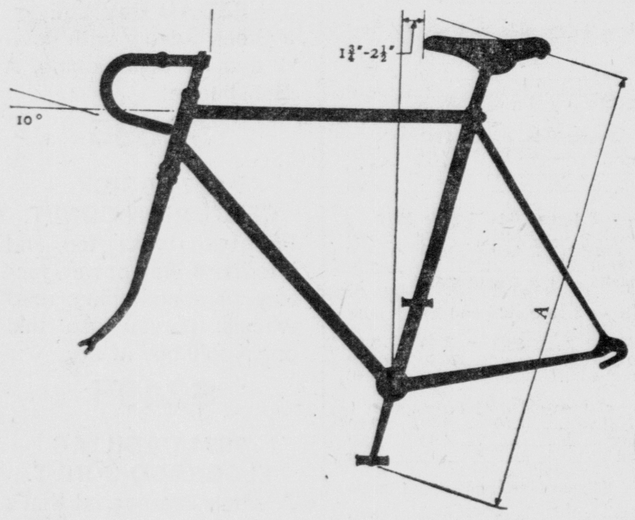

- Inside length of leg from crotch bone to floor, measured in stocking feet, less nine inches, and height divided by three.
- Thus, a person with a 32 inch inside leg measurement should have a 23 inch frame, and some- body 6 feet tall would get a 24 pinch frame. Be sure in any event that you can straddle the frame comfortably with your feet flat on the ground.

The position of the saddle deter- mines the fitting of the rest of the bike. For most riders the correct fore-to-aft position is with the nose of the saddle 1¾ to 2½ inches be- hind a vertical line through the crank hanger.

Most saddles are set too low. A rough rule of thumb is that while sitting on the bike with your heel on the pedal at its lowest point, your leg should be straight.

A precise formula for the best saddle height has been worked out in a series of scientific tests. Mea- sure inside length of leg from crotch bone to floor without shoes. Multiply this length (in inches) by 1.09. Set saddle so distance A from top of saddle to center of pedal spindle in down position with crank parallel to seat tube is 34 7/8 inches.

PITCHING ACE Jim Kaat show his curve grip. That and his new "pitching quick" style has helped this 18-year veteran bring the White Sox 18 victories this season.

Kaat—old dog with new trick

Pitching quick lengthens career

by ED SAINSBURY

Jim Kaat is an old dog with a new trick. The Chicago White Sox left-hander, 36 years old, added a new pitch in this, his 15th year in the major leagues, and he should be a 20-game winner for the second straight year. He recently won his 18th.

Only once before 1974 had he won more than 20 games in a season, his high of 25 in 1964. But now apparently older is better.

He holds the club record for consecutive wins, 12 over two seasons; his last seven in 1974, his first five this year, when he also won eight of his first nine games.

The added trick this year has a description Kaat denies. It's described as a "quick pitch."

"I like to turn that around," Kaat said. "I don't have a quick pitch. I pitch quick."

Kaat started the new style in his last exhibition game this spring, following the advice of Sox pitching coach Johnny Sain, who told him to abandon his windup and instead of moving his hand behind his back in preparing to throw simply to bring his arm up from his side and let the ball go.

The result, Sain explained, is that he no longer "is hooking the ball. He doesn't turn his wrist behind his back, and it gives him better control."

Kaat comes overhand with the ball, he said, regardless of where he starts his motion, but at times it appears he's firing sidearm or even underhand.

There's been some objection from batters that Kaat lets fly before they are ready, and if he really were throwing a "quick pitch," by rule it would be called a ball.

"The haven't called any balls on me so far," Kaat said. "Five or six times a game, they say it's no pitch, that the batter stepped out of the box or something."

Kaat assesses his success from a team basis. "There's been a lot of games I didn't pitch exceptionally well," he said. "The infielders and the outfielders and the cather have made the plays in the field, and they've scored the runs to win.

"It's not that I've been good. It's that they did their job well enough that I won."

Manager Chuck Tanner, who grabbed Kaat when he was available from Minnesota midway through the 1973 season, pays tribute to his aging southpaw for adopting the new pitch.

"A lot of players at his age won't try anything new," Tanner said. "Here's a guy who knows that he may be on the way out, and he's got the guts enough to try something new and it's worked, so he may have extended his major league career four or five years. Since he's been with us he's been as good as any pitcher in baseball."

Kaat turns Tanner's compliment around too. "He stuck with me and gave me the chance to add the new pitch," Kaat said. "Sain suggested it and I worked it in gradually. I don't throw it too many times a game, never more than six or eight times.

"If you used it all the time, it would lose its effectiveness. But pitchers use a change and this is the opposite. Other pitchers have tried it, but I guess I've been more successful."

Katt is the leading active left-hander in the majors, and second only to the St. Louis Cardinals' starting rotation, but Kaat tackles his regular turn for the Sox, working sometimes with two days rest.

He has talked about the possibility of retiring after this year, but such a decision is in limbo. If he can't "pitch quick" with success, he might add another new pitch in 1976 and who knows how long he'll go on?

Park district hockey program

Eight Northwest Suburban Park Districts have formed a recreational ice hockey program for boys 6-16 years old. The emphasis will be placed on fun and learning and not on competition. All boys will play equal amounts of time against boys of equal ability. Games will be played at the Rolling Meadows Park District's Sports Complex.

Each boy will receive a minimum of 24 hours of ice, a team jersey, accident insurance, a league patch, personal instruction and a discount pass to all public sessions at the Rolling Meadows Park District Sports Complex. The League begins October 1st and will run through March.

Interested boys should contact their local park district or the Rolling Meadows Park District for specific registration information. Participating Park Districts are Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Buffalo Grove, Bensenville, and Bloomingdale Athletic Club. Registration is currently under way and no hockey background is necessary — all boys are welcome.

About Dave Hasbach . . .

Dave Hasbach pitched a four-hitter on Friday, Aug. 22, in his first Triple-A start for Omaha, beating the Iowa Oaks, 3-1, and striking out four.

The former Palatine High School three-sport star, who pitched for Miami of Ohio before signing with the Kansas City Royals, was elevated from Double-A ball at Jacksonville (Fla.) where he posted a 10-8 record, 2.91 ERA and four shutouts.

The 23-year-old Hasbach, a right-hander who stands 6-foot-3 and weighs 205 pounds, was drafted in January, 1974, by the Royals despite a severe arm injury which forced him to miss his final season at Miami of Ohio.

Hasbach, whose parents still live in Palatine, recovered from an operation on his pitching arm and a damaged Achilles tendon to log a creditable record at Jacksonville, including a one-hitter, during his first pro season.

. . . and Ralph Bosch . . .

Ralph Bosch, a junior center from Arlington Heights, who prepped at St. Viator, is among four varsity players battling for starting center at Yale University.

Bosch earned his initial varsity letter as a sophomore, participating chiefly on punting and field goal situations. He's expected to handle the long snapping chores again this fall for the Elis.

Yale has finished no worse than second in Ivy Legue games in seven of the past eight seasons with an 8-1 record in 1974.

Yale owns more victories than any other college or university with 666 wins in 102 seasons. Princeton is second with 615 triumphs.

. . . and now, Dan Matter

Dan Matter, an offensive and defensive starter for two years at Prospect High School through 1972, is the leading candidate for first string punter at the University of Iowa.

Matter, a veteran of the Mid-Suburban League's first Super Bowl in 1970, attended Carthage College in Kenosha, Wis., for one year before leaving school. He walked onto the Iowa City campus during the 1974 season.

"I've been around Iowa football a long time," said Hawkeye coach Bob Commings, "and I've never seen anybody kick the football as far as this Matter kid."

Dan, at six feet and 220 pounds, currently resides in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. His parents live in Buffalo Grove.

Softball tournament

Dug Out Park in Trevor, Wis., has announced a Tuesday, Sept. 2, deadline for entries into its Fourth Annual Odd Ball Softball Tournament to be staged Sept. 6-7 at the Park on Highway 83, two miles north of Antioch. Entry fee is $40. The games will be 12 and 16-inch slow pitch. For additional information, call Tom Furlan at 414-862-9136.

Hockey association makes changes for new season

The Des Plaines Amateur Hockey Association has made some changes for the 1975-76 season. The most notable revision will be its house league teams playing against clubs from Niles.

House league games have been scheduled for Saturday and Sunday mornings at the Ballard Ice Rink in Niles.

All boys will compete only in their age bracket with squirts for 9 and 10-year-olds, pee wees for 11 and 12-year-olds, bantams for 13 and 14-year-olds and midgets for 15 and 16-year-olds.

A $60 house league registration fee covers 24 games, five practices and two hours of evaluation. Clinics are being planned for six, seven and eight-year-old boys who don't play with traveling teams.

Registration will occur from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. each of the next two Saturdays (Aug. 30 and Sept. 6) at West Park in Des Plaines. Youngsters may submit their used hockey equipment for sale at both registrations.

The Des Plaines Panthers and Blues All-Star traveling teams will skate in the Greater Chicago Minor Hockey Association league with home games at the Franklin Park Ice Arena.

Tryouts for the Panthers and Blues All-Stars will be held Sept. 13-16 at the Franklin Park rink.

On Saturday, Sept. 13, workouts will start as follows: mites 8 a.m., squirts 9 a.m., pee wees 10 a.m., bantams 11 a.m., midgets noon and juniors 1 p.m.

Registration for these tryouts will also be accepted one-half hour before the respective sessions begin at Franklin Park Ice Arena.

For additional information, contact Dan Tomaszewski at 298-8279.

"The first time I got back up on the high platform," she said, "I looked and it seemed so far down like I'd never reach the water. But the only after-effect I have now is that sometimes I dream that I hit the water and my stomach scars open and the water turns red. I wake up sweating.

"I'm lucky, though. I almost had three teeth knocked out in the accident. But my braces saved the day."

Ask Andy

Tears — automatic eye cleanser

Andy sends complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Lynne Kenney, age 13, of Libertyville for the question:
EXACTLY WHAT ARE TEARS?

Tears are made of a salty moisture that spills out from the eyes and streams down the cheeks. But this is not the whole story. Tears are not only for crying or laughing. They are much more than just salty liquid, and their main duty keeps them busy all day long.

The air is full of dusty particles, and the surface of the eyes must be kept clean. Eyes are bright and shiny because they are continuously washed and wiped as we blink, about once every six seconds. The blinking eyelids act like automatic windshield wipers — and the cleansing lotion is the same teary liquid that spills down the cheeks during a crying spell.

This remarkable moisture is manufactured in the tear glands. These are the size and shape of almonds. One is situated under the lid at the outside corner of each eye. The watery fluid they manufacture is a balanced mixture of dissolved salts and other soothing chemicals, plus some ingredients that fight certain bacteria likely to invade the eyes.

The tear glands are surrounded and controlled by teams of facial muscles. When the eyelids blink, a small helping of the precious lotion is squeezed by other things, besides the blinking eyelids. When we cry or laugh a lot, facial muscles are pulled out of shape. The tear glands are squeezed, spill out their magic lotion and manufacture more to replace it. The teary lotion slops over and spills down the cheeks.

The blinking operation uses only a tiny droplet of teary moisture. After wiping the surface, the used liquid drains away through a tiny hole at the inside corner of each eye. But a flood of tears flows too fast for the drainage system.

The drainage hole is the tear duct, which empties into a small tube in the back of the nose. During a crying spell, some of the extra liquid floods down the tear duct into the back of the nose, adding an attack of sniffles to an already miserable situation.

Andy sends a seven-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Pat Den-Bensten, age 11, of Rock Valley, Iowa, for his question:
WHERE DO PUFFINS ORIGINATE?

The puffin belongs to the chilly shores of the Arctic, though sometimes he migrates farther south to spend the winter. He has a clownish white face with a huge, thick bill striped with vivid blue, yellow and red. His back is black; his underside is snowy white. He wears a black collar under his chin and a little black cap on his head. His clown costume is enhanced by a huge pair of wide, webbed feet — in bright orange.

Where there is one puffin, there are sure to be hundreds more — usually sunning themselves on a rocky ledge high above the sea. Now and then he swims underwater to fill his great bill with fishes. The Atlantic puffin is at home along the shores of Greenland, Scandinavia and northern Canada. Two Pacific puffins are at home around Alaska and northern Asia. Some of these birds may migrate southward as far as Japan and California. The Atlantic puffin may pay a short winter visit to the northern shores of France or Portugal.

The unlucky expert plays his chances

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

The unlucky expert had us cornered again. This time he was all smiles. He chortled, "I think I've finally broken my jinx."

He showed us the North and South cards and said, "You are in four hearts after a two club overcall by West. He leads the king and ace of clubs. East echoes so he continues with the jack. Which one of dummy's trumps do you ruff with?"

We looked over the hand carefully. It was a close choice. The king would be the winning play if East held singleton queen or queen-small; the 10 play right if West held either of those holdings. It was far more likely if hearts broke 3-1 for East to be long so we replied, "The ten spot is the percentage play."

He said, "I figured that out also. It wasn't much better than the king play. Then I thought about my regular bad luck and decided to go against the percentage. I played dummy's king; led low; finessed and made my contact."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
